Chicago's Great Exposition. The Light of Arcturus. Two Heads Blown Off. Sock the Rich Slogan.

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CHICAGO, April 9.

YESTERDAY MORNING was spent at Chicago's "A Century of Progress" international exposition with Rufus C. Dawes as guide. Mr. Dawes says the exposition will open on the date fixed, June 1, 1933, or earlier. And since he says so, it will open.

The site of the exposition, with Lake Michigan on the east, the great city of Chicago on the west, north and south, could not be more beautiful or more impressive.

EVERYTHING THAT a great exposition should have this one will have. In addition, progress and science, being emphasized above all else, will give to the exposition an educational value that should not be neglected by any American, parents especially.

Great industries and business enterprises will have separate buildings of their own. General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Chrysler and many others.

Chicago and the whole country owe thanks to Mr. Dawes for the valuable time and intelligent industry that he has devoted to this exposition.

The light of the great star Arcturus, by means of a photo-electric cell, will put in motion the machinery of the Building of Sciences when the exposition opens.

Arcturus was selected because of its brilliancy and because the light of that sun travels forty years through the ether, at 186,600 miles per second before it reaches this planet.

The Chicago World's Columbian Exposition opened just 40 years ago, and the light of Arcturus that will start this exposition left the distant sun as the last Chicago exposition opened.

That should stimulate your imagination. Light comes from our sun 93,000,000 miles away, in eight minutes. You can imagine dimly how far Arcturus must be, its light taking forty years to get here. And if that does not exhaust your imagination, think about the distant nebula whence light comes to us after traveling a million years or more.

You must see Chicago's exposition and have your business represented there if you have a business worth showing.

CHICAGO CAN'T quite compete with New York in gang killings but does pretty well. Benjamin Applequist and his brother, Ernest, were killed Thursday night, their heads almost blown off by shotgun slugs as they stood tending bar in their modest little speakeasy at 43 North Paulina street. The police are looking for "Dago" Lawrence Mangano, said to have warned the Applequists to drop the beer business and get out.

Mangano is called "a Capone henchman," but that means little. If television should bring us a gang killing on Mars, some would accuse Capone. It is a fact, however, that Capone in his prison says candidly:

"There is nothing I could do if I were out that I can't do from here."

CONGRESSMEN WHOSE three-word vote getting slogan is "sock the rich" will read with joy about the inheritance tax of the estate of Reuben H. Donnelley, of Chicago, who died in February, 1929, before the big wind in Wall Street.

Mr. Donnelley owned eleven million dollars worth of Montgomery Ward stock and other things. The inheritance tax was two million dollars. Stocks crashed and Mr. Donnelley's heirs now owe the government everything they have got and one million three hundred thousand dollars more.

THIS IS A land of ups and downs. One stock very popular through the Middle West was so eagerly sought for that men paid a premium for "rights" to buy the stock at $140 a share. It is selling, rights and all, today, for less than forty cents a share. "He hath put down the mighty," and the quotations.

DISPATCHES FROM Washington say the House of Representatives won't change its mind, so the Senate has abandoned hope of reviving the sales tax. It should be remembered that newspapers advocating the sales tax advocate taxing themselves, for the tax would fall heavily on print paper, chief item in newspaper expense.

W. R. Hearst, for instance, advocates the sales tax which operates successfully in Canada and elsewhere, believing it to be the best way of solving the nation's financial problem and restoring prosperity and employment, without irritating or injuring any particular business.

The sales tax would cost Hearst at least one million dollars a year for the tax on newsprint alone, and other editors in proportion to the size of their paper bills.

A CHAIN is no stronger than its weakest link, and the human race presumably is no stronger intellectually than its low average.

The good ship Hagen, a Hamburg-American freight ship, arrives in Boston with two baby elephants and 13 monkeys, after a terrible storm.

There were 14 monkeys from Java and the terrible tempest arose, after one of them died, leaving the unlucky 13. The sailors knew what caused the tempest and wanted to throw the remaining 13 monkeys overboard, but the captain saved them. They were more fortunate than Jonah. You remember what happened to him when a storm came up.

Hawaii Prosecutor to Call Own Alienists If Defense Offers Plea of Insanity

By GILBERT PARKER
International News Service.

HONOLULU, T. H., April 9.—Will Grace Hubbard Fortescue, patrician "enigma woman" of a tropical drama of death, take the witness stand in her own behalf?

This insistent question pressed to the fore today as state and prosecution girded for the legal battle that will start Monday with the taking of testimony in the trial of Mrs. Fortescue and three American men accused of killing a native to avenge an attack on Mrs. Fortescue's daughter.

The answer lay sealed behind the lips of Clarence Darrow, master defender of Mrs. Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and two naval enlisted men, Albert S. Jones and E. J. Lord. The four are accused of shooting Joseph Kahahawai, suspected as the leader of a gang of five that attacked Mrs. Thalia Massie, daughter of Mrs. Fortescue and wife of Lieut. Massie.

In all probability Darrow himself has not decided if he will allow Mrs. Fortescue to tell the swift happenings of January 8, when Kahahawai was abducted from the steps of the judiciary building—abducted, to be found a few hours later in Mrs. Fortescue's automobile, a bullet through his heart.

SENATE SEES 'BEAR RAID' PLOT

France Linked in Alleged Conspiracy to Drive U. S. Off Gold, Capital Stirred

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP.)—Acting on a suddenly reached decision the Senate Banking Committee will open the long-waited investigation of the New York Stock Exchange next Monday with Richard Whitney, its president, on the witness stand.

Scenting a far-reaching conspiracy, the committee has determined to find out what influences, domestic or foreign, were behind the drive which smashed down security prices this week, culminating yesterday in record lows for many issues.

SENATE AIDE IN NEW YORK

A sergeant-at-arms of the Senate was in New York today to serve the papers and see that the desired records were assembled and brought to Washington.

The secrecy and suddenness of the committee's session startled the capital. The Senate, with the known backing of President Hoover, ordered an investigation of the stock market a month ago, but it had been deferred pending disposition of other business, still uncompleted.

Senator Wolcott (Rep.), of Connecticut, administration spokesman, organized the meeting. He insisted he had received no suggestion from the White House for the new move, yet his closeness to the President left no doubt but that Mr. Hoover is supporting the inquiry. He was reluctant to comment. He told newspapermen:

"Just read today's papers."

BROOKHART NAMES FRANCE

He directed attention to stories from New York and Paris. They told of the downward movement of stocks, new gold shipments from this country to France and the campaign in that country against the American dollar.

Brookhart spoke of a "systematic bear raid" and hinted at foreign influences, specifically naming France. A lot of vague hints were passed out. Brookhart remarked he had in his pocket a report purporting to show an attempt to drive America off the gold standard.

PARENTS DIE, SON PERILED IN CELLAR OF HOME

Two Women, Man Stricken In Bloomfield Rooming House; Dogs Overcome

A man and wife were killed and their son overcome by carbon monoxide in their Versailles Borough home last night and two women, a man and two dogs were overcome by unburned gas in a Bloomfield rooming house early today.

The dead were Joseph W. Denyen, 56, and his wife, Barbola, 52.

Denyen was taking a bath in a cellar tub when his son, Andrew, 25, a missionary worker for the Seventh Day Adventists, returned home for dinner last night.

HEARS MOTHER SCREAM

Hearing his father snoring in the tub, Andrew, busy at some work, asked his mother to go to the cellar and awaken him.

He heard her scream and ran downstairs. Finding his father unconscious, Andrew strove to revive him. As he did so his mother collapsed. A few minutes later, he said, he, too, became weak, but succeeded in opening a window.

Reviving nearly three hours later, he made his way to the home of Howard Mosby, a Negro neighbor. Mosby called police and doctors, who found both Mr. and Mrs. Denyen dead.

County detectives took Andrew into custody and placed him in the McKeesport jail over night.

Coroner's tests this morning revealed that carbon monoxide had caused the deaths and the son was released.

Coroner's office attaches said the fumes originated from a hot water heater in the cellar.

ROOMERS OVERCOME

Mrs. Minnie Weiher, 52, of 170 Pearl street, was aroused by the moans of a roomer, Miss Anna Martin, 55, early today.

She called Richard Berry, 62, another roomer, to aid in caring for Miss Martin.

While they were doing this, Mrs. Weiher collapsed. Gas was found escaping from an unlighted stove.

Berry called the West Penn Hospital ambulance and he and the two women were taken there. Berry was discharged from the hospital after first-aid treatment, but the women were detained for further care. Their conditions, physicians said, are not serious.

Police found two Boston terriers, "Beauty" and "King," pets of Mrs. Weiher, overcome by the fumes in a rear room. Taken to the open air, the dogs quickly recovered, apparently none the worse for their experience.

BOWSER FIGHT UP IN COURT

The right of Controller R. G. Woodside to compel Watson G. Bowser, Kittanning contractor, who obtained approximately $200,000 for trucking during 1931, mostly on the county airport job, to testify and produce his records was being argued today before four judges.

Bowser was ordered committed to jail by the Controller when he declined to produce his books. Through Attorney O. K. Eaton, Bowser brought habeas corpus proceedings, which were being heard today.

Retired Judge John A. Evans, with Judges A. B. Reid, W. Heber Dithrich and Thomas M. Marshall were on the bench when Attorney Eaton, Assistant County Solicitor Ralph Frank, and Attorney Arch Powell, counsel for the controller, began a discussion of the case.

OXYGEN SAVES GIRL'S LIFE

Snatched from death's door by the timely arrival of Carrick police with oxygen tanks, 4-year-old Dorothy May Fisher opened her eyes and smiled a wan thanks to her rescuers today.

Stricken in her home, 123 Burr street, with pneumonia, following a severe attack of whooping cough, the tiny tot's condition Thursday night prompted her physician, Dr. N. Resanor, of Brownsville road, to call for an inhalator. Police have been working in three shifts night and day since. Nine tanks of oxygen had been administered at 8 o'clock this morning.

When the child rallied early today, police discontinued using the inhalator, but stood by until the doctor should declare her out of danger.

The child is the youngest of six. Nicholas Fisher, the father, has been unemployed for nearly a year.

Arrest of Gang Chief in Lindy Kidnaping Near

TRENTON, N. J., April 9.—(INS.)—Harry Fleischer, former Detroit "Purple" gangster, was reported located by New Jersey state police today and may shortly be taken into custody for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping. From Detroit came information he was being trailed in Canada by Michigan officers.

Indications were that Fleischer had been located elsewhere than in New Jersey. Supt. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, of the New Jersey state police stated:

"We can not at this time release the name of the police department who supplied us with the information as to the probable whereabouts of Fleischer, as this is still under investigation."

Whether Abie Wagner, twice a pistol target for New York East Side racketeers, likewise had been located, was not disclosed. One report is that Wagner, Fleischer's friend, is dead. Wagner was also

HOOVER MEETS ON ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP.)—Optimism over the outcome of President Hoover's conference with the House Economy Committee was sounded today at the White House as the group assembled to discuss a $200,000,000 money saving program.

Little hope was held, however, for a complete agreement upon all items in the program devised by the President and the 55 or 60 proposals of the economy group. Further parleys will have to be held, it was said.

The Chief Executive early today summoned a group of official advisitors to sit with him during the cabinet room conference. In addition to Secretary Mills and Director Roop, of the budget, Postmaster General Brown and Secretary Wilbur were called. Mills reported the administration was "all set" with a group of suggestions.

Almost all of the President's proposals, it was learned, are dependent upon the granting of legislative authority by Congress. Many of the House committee's suggestions center upon consolidation of existing activities to eliminate overlap.

Drys Slay Man, Shoot Wife

DALLAS, Tex., April 9.—(INS.)—Marion McGlothlin, 45, a grocer, was slain, and his wife slightly wounded by bullets from the guns of federal prohibition agents following a liquor raid near Dallas early today.

Federal Agents L. C. Smith and N. D. Heaton, both of Dallas, were being held in the county jail awaiting their appearance before a grand jury in connection with the shootings.

According to Sheriff Hal Hood, who investigated the shootings and to whom the agents made a statement, the McGlothlins, attempting to aid an alleged bootlegger and his wife whom the agents had arrested, drew guns on the agents and shot at them.

The agents returned the fire, according to Sheriff Hood, killing McGlothlin and wounding Mrs. McGlothlin in the right hand.

Two Boys on Bicycle Fall Under Sweeper

Thrown from a bicycle when it skidded into the path of a street sweeper, two Wilkinsburg boys, James Harding, 10, of 1702 Montier street, and James Nye, 12, of 1007 Penn avenue, are in Columbia Hospital, the former with a fractured hip, the latter with a fractured right leg and other injuries.

The street sweeper was driven by James J. Moran, of 7451½ Finance street. Nye was drawn under the broom, which was not operating.

PHILADELPHIA, April 9.—(AP.)—In what she termed a "good business arrangement," Mrs. Elizabeth Muller, 68-year-old real estate operator and cousin of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, today married her 31-year-old chauffeur, Everett Tompkins. Mrs. Muller said:

"This way I have a chauffeur who will be taking a real interest in the business because it is part of his income and he can help me with business affairs. We both like each other immensely."

Aimee Denies She Plans Temple Sale

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—(AP.)—Frequently published reports that Mrs. Aimee McPherson Hutton was negotiating to sell Angelus Temple to Paul Rader, Chicago evangelist, brought a statement of denial from the evangelist today. She said:

"It is true that during the past few years we have had several offers, but I have never seriously considered them."

Dawes' Niece Sails On Her Honeymoon

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Stamp, who were married in Evanston, Ill., several days ago, sailed last night aboard the Olympic. Mr. Stamp is a son of Sir Josiah Stamp, British financier, and Mrs. Stamp is a niece of Charles G. Dawes, Chicago banker, now head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Manchurian Reds Held in Rebel Plot

HARBIN, Manchuria, April 9.—(AP.)—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch today said that police in Eastern Kirin had arrested a number of Chinese, including Communist organizers of Chinese Eastern Railway employes, and charged that they planned to undermine the new administration in Manchuria.

Police said grenades and bombs had been found in several buildings in Harbin. The Soviet consul-general immediately lodged a strong protest against the arrest of the Communists.

Steel Orders Off 73,216 Tons

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP.)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation decreased 73,216 tons in March to a total of 2,472,413 tons, a record low since the corporation has been reporting monthly figures. In February there was a decline of 102,521 tons.

Few attempts to estimate the shrinkage had been made, although some forecasters believed the backlog would fall to around 2,400,000 tons. Steel operations were disappointing last month, for the industry failed to experience a seasonal gain.

In March, 1931, the Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage rose to 30,136 tons to 3,995,330, but since that month there has been an uninterrupted decline in the monthly figures.

Policeman Beaten Breaking Up Fight

Vincent Mostrogenalian, 32, and Gilda Delangle, of 15 Natchez street, were arrested early today after they had attacked Patrolman Keith Hill, of Center Avenue Police Station, who attempted to prevent them from quarreling, according to police.

The officer attempted to separate the men as they engaged in a fist fight at Bedford avenue and Washington street. He said his uniform was torn when the men struck him. Two officers came to Hill's assistance.

N. Y. Society Girl To Wed Englishman

LONDON, April 9. — (INS.) — Miss Katherine Garrison, daughter of Mrs. Constance Coudert Garrison, New York social registerite, will be married in Paris Monday to Walter Leslie Runciman, son and heir of Sir Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, it was announced today.

The engagement, reported recently, was not confirmed until today.

Mellon Luncheon Guest Of King at Windsor

WINDSOR, Eng., April 9.—(INS.)—The ancient gates of Windsor Castle were flung open today to receive Andrew W. Mellon, new American ambassador to the Court of St. James, who motored out from London to present his credentials to King George.

The Ambassador was accompanied by Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, who picked up Mellon at the American embassy in Prince's Gates.

Mellon remained at the castle for luncheon. The royal chef prepared a simple but tasty meal consisting of soup, fish and grilled lamb chops in English style.

The luncheon was an extremely informal affair in the King's private apartments in the rear of the ancient pile. The entire meeting was bereft of ceremony. Mellon and Sir John made the trip unaccompanied by attaches or secretaries.

Over their simple luncheon, King George and Ambassador Mellon had an opportunity for a personal chat. It was assumed that Anglo-American relations were discussed along most general lines, and King George's genuine interest in art doubtless led the conversation toward the new ambassador's priceless art collection.

Dog Guarding Dead Master Keeps Police at Bay

A police dog stood guard over the body of its dead master, the victim of a hit-and-run driver, in the Freeport road at Harmarville early today, and held at bay for nearly two hours police and highway patrolmen who sought to remove the body.

The body, that of an unidentified man, aged about 30, was discovered by a motorist, who notified Oakmont police. Officers found their approach barred by the snarling dog. They finally succeeded in throwing a rope over the animal's head and secured him to an automobile wheel.

Police said the man was well dressed and bore the initials "W. P. K." tattooed on his right shoulder.

CITY TO RENEW PARLEYS FOR LIGHT RATE REDUCTION

P. S. C. APPEAL UNLIKELY, SAYS WALDSCHMIDT

Solicitor Declares Cost of Such Action Might Run $500,000; Meet Utilities

Denying the city would seek relief from electric light rates before the Public Service Commission, City Solicitor C. A. Waldschmidt today said further conferences would be held next week with the Duquesne Light Company in an effort to obtain a reduction by amicable means.

The reduction averaging a dime a month to domestic consumers was declared unacceptable by the solicitor and members of Council yesterday. However, Waldschmidt today explained any inference that the city would open a fight before the Public Service Commission was not warranted as this would be too costly, he said.

"The city has no intention of suing for reduction in electric light rates before the Public Service Commission at the present time. Our statement issued yesterday, in which we said every honorable method would be used to bring about a further reduction, still stands.

"Litigation before the Public Service Commission is very costly. It would probably involve an expenditure of $500,000 by the city before the case was finished.

"I intend arranging a conference with officials of the Duquesne Light Company next week in an effort to obtain a larger reduction than that offered us a month ago. The city has not decided what its action will be if the request is denied."

CONVICT FACES SLAYING QUIZ

George Thompson, of Pittsburgh, the prisoner for whom the improvised knife of Convict James Gordon was believed intended in a fight fatal to two other prisoners in Western Penitentiary, was to be questioned by prison authorities and detectives today.

Meanwhile, Gordon, charged with stabbing to death Mike Ferrero and Martin Connolly, convicts, continued his recovery from self-inflicted wounds in the prison hospital.

Sleuths learned, they say, that Gordon had been placed in solitary confinement after he had provoked a quarrel with Thompson. The latter in a letter to his relatives, had expressed concern over Gordon's release from confinement. Connolly and Ferrero were friends of Thompson.

reported wanted for questioning in the kidnaping.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was at his home near Hopewell, N. J., today after an all-day absence yesterday.

State police now admit that Col. Lindbergh has been absent on a number of occasions in addition to his two mystery trips last week-end, notably upon visits to his office in New York city to take care of pressing business matters.

Inaction at Hopewell and at Norfolk, Va., indicated that Lindbergh and his three Virginia intermediaries, John H. Curtis, the Very Rev. H. Dobson Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, U. S. N., retired, are waiting further word from their purported contact with the kidnapers' agents.

It was reported in Norfolk the kidnapers had raised their ransom demands to $250,000. Admiral Burrage, spokesman for the three intermediaries, there, refused to confirm or deny the report.

Charles F. Cord, a banker from North Arlington, N. J., was a visitor at the Lindbergh home yesterday. He stated that he had an appointment and his visit lasted two hours.

A man who said he came from Martha's Vineyard, Mass., visited by Lindbergh and his companions on their mystery flights last week-end, likewise was admitted to the house. He told a story of having seen a mysterious rumboat anchored off the island, and contacted by another craft. The rumboat, he said, had baby's clothing hanging on a line aboard.

Capone Beer Gang Ousts O'Donnell

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP)—Edward "Spike" O'Donnell today was reported to be virtually eliminated from the South Side beer trade in which he has been a dominating figure for nearly a decade by Capone gangsters.

"Spike's" retirement would remove from gangland one of its most notorious and pugnacious characters. O'Donnell, one of seven brothers, five of whom still survive, rose from the labor "wars" of more than 10 years ago to become one of the strongest of the beer hustlers.

31ST WARD QUIZ TO BE PUSHED

A grand jury probe into alleged registration frauds in the First District of the Thirty-first Ward, formerly Hays Borough, will be sought in Criminal Court Monday.

First Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt today was preparing a petition asking Judge Elder W. Marshall to instruct the grand jury to act. In the meantime county detectives were serving subpenas.

The proble was decided upon when the entire membership of the registration board and their attorney, John M. Henry, asked for action.

One of the charges, it was said today, is that 25 Negroes were given liquor and told to declare they had lost their tax receipts and demand registration.

Langfitt said the evidence was insufficient to make informations before an alderman and the most effective procedure would be to invoke the powers of the grand jury to call witnesses.

SOCIETY WOMAN FACES CALL IN HAWAII CASE

Prosecutor Threatens Delay To Summon Alienists to Offset Defense Doctors

United States, making tentative arrangements for their presence in Honolulu when required. Prosecutor John C. Kelly told International News Service:

"We don't propose to be jockeyed into a position from which we cannot properly prosecute the government's case.

"If the defense presents a plea of insanity, we will at once ask the court for two weeks' delay in the trial in order that we may bring mental experts from the United States to testify. I am assured the Board of Supervisors will authorize such an expense."

JURY SECLUDED

The polyglot jury that will hear the case, half Caucasian, half men of mixed blood, will spend the week-end in their homes, under court orders to hold themselves aloof from contact with the swirling currents of prejudice that lie close to the surface in this tropical paradise.

Although absolute silence as to their plans prevailed in the defense camp, it was reported Darrow would enter the legal arena as footloose as a clever boxer, capable of turning his defense—which in this case amounts to an attack—to fit whatever he may find of weakness in the state's case as prepared by Prosecutor Kelley.

The "unwritten law" is expected to figure as the background of the defense case, whatever final form it may take.

Darrow's "shock troops" may be the two eminent Los Angeles alienists Drs. Edward H. Williams and Thomas J. Orbison, who arrived unexpectedly [illegible].

But the spearhead of [illegible] attack, many believe, will be the patrician American society woman herself.

"BIG MOMENT" SEEN

If the "emotional insanity" plea is to be advanced as the major premise of the defense, it may well be predicated upon Mrs. Fortescue taking the stand and relating for the first time the "inside story" of Kahahawai's death.

If she does so, it is certain that her story will be the "big moment" of the trial.

Darrow will leave no stone unturned to place before the jury the facts of the attack on Thalia Massie, and the trial that ended in a hung jury of the five men accused of the crime.

"Justifiable homicide" is the legal version of the "unwritten law." Rulings of the court, openings presented by the state's case and the exigencies of the defense procedure will all figure in the extent to which it is stressed.

"Emotional insanity," generally believed to be Darrow's "ace in the hole," also depends as a defense largely upon the case presented by the state.

CAREFUL STUDY SEEN

The extent to which the defense is able to place the plea of the "unwritten law" before the jury will also determine in a large extent measure decision as to advancing the insanity defense.

It is the belief of the prosecution that the defense alienists will devote much of their time to a study of Mrs. Fortescue. Coming from a sheltered life in the East and on the European continent, she was thrust into a situation in which her daughter had been the victim of almost inhuman brutality.

Did the rigid self-control which had been hers throughout a lifetime suddenly snap? Was she swept by emotions over which she had no control into playing a role foreign to all that had come before in her well-ordered existence?

These and other queries the psychiatrists will probably answer in highly scientific fashion if they are called to the stand.

Policeman Shot, Girl Periled in Wilkinsburg

MISS DOROTHY M'KEE . . . . SAW PATROLMAN SHOT DOWN

Patrolman Wounded By Fleeing Man; 2 Suspects Freed

Wilkinsburg policemen today were taking blood tests preparatory to a transfusion operation to save the life of Patrolman William Kelly, shot when he surprised a man stripping an automobile last night. Both citizens and members of the police force went to Columbia Hospital today to offer blood to the wounded officer.

Kelly, 45, father of five, was in a serious condition with a bullet wound in the left side.

While patrolling his beat, Kelly related, he saw a man removing a spare tire from an automobile parked in front of the Masonic Temple, South avenue and Mulberry street, Wilkinsburg. The man fled at his approach.

As he ran the man turned, drew a revolver and fired twice. Kelly fell and the gunman escaped.

The shooting imperiled Miss Dorothy McKee. She said today:

"The shooting occurred across the street from my home. When the policemen saw the man behind the automobile the man ran. The officer reached for his revolver and shouted, 'Stop, or I'll shoot!' The man turned and fired twice."

Two suspects arrested early today were later released.

WILLIAM KELLY

Planes Crash in Air, Two Pilots Killed

MILAN, Italy, April 9.—(AP)—Two army bombing planes collided at an altitude of 1,500 feet, killing two officers and five men.

The planes were members of a squadron participating in bombing maneuvers, yesterday. The dead include Lts. Vittorio Pace and Fortunato Gadda, pilots.

BUTLER VISITS 4 COUNTIES

CLEARFIELD, Pa., April 9.—(AP)—The Butler-Pinchot independent Republicans swung through four more counties today echoing their pleas of eviction for "the Philadelphia gang."

They appeared in Clearfield, Bellefonte and Lock Haven by daylight with a night stop in Williamsport.

Stumping the oil country yesterday, Gov. Pinchot appealed to voters to "help keep out of Harrisburg the gang that bankrupted Philadelphia." He praised Gen. Smedley D. Butler, seeking the senatorial seat, as a man uncontrolled by anyone while Senator James J. Davis was again characterized as a "pawn of the Vare crowd."

Gen. Butler, at each stop, pledged himself to represent his constituents if elected and reiterated his stand for relief of unemployed and for protection of Pennsylvania industries.

Brief addresses were made by Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, seeking return to the Superior Court, and Ralph Flinn, candidate for auditor general.

DAVIS SPEAKS ON RELIEF AND DRY REPEAL

Senator Renews Attack on Prohibition in 3 Campaign Talks Here With Baldwin

Senator James J. Davis, running for a full term, and State Senator Frank E. Baldwin, candidate for Auditor General, returned to this district in the interest of their campaigns and addressed meetings last night in South Side Turner Hall, Seventeenth Ward; Maennerchor Hall, Nineteenth Ward, and Greenfield School, Fifteenth Ward.

Other speakers included State Senator James J. Coyne, field marshal for the Republican organization in Western Pennsylvania; Allegheny County Campaign Chairman William H. Coleman, and Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk, chairman of the meetings and speakers committee of the Allegheny County campaign committee.

CONGRATULATES COURT

Davis congratulated the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on its stand in holding the Talbot bill constitutional. That measure, he said, would provide $10,000,000 for relief of the unemployed.

He said he could not understand why Gov. Pinchot did not sign the Talbot bill when it was first presented to him, in view of Pinchot's repeated demands for federal relief for the state.

Concerning his recently announced stand for repeal or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment, Senator Davis reiterated his declaration that prohibition today is an economic and a moral issue, and that its non-enforcement had brought a vast amount of crime and lawlessness.

REVENUE DIVERTED

He said billions were being spent to enforce an unforceable issue and a vast amount of revenue which should go to the government was being diverted to the few while millions lacked the necessities of life which this revenue might bring to them in employment and relief.

Senator Baldwin said:

"Gov. Pinchot has been extravagant and if he is permitted to have his way we will face a deficit much bigger than the people of our state will be able to bear."

COYNE RAPS PINCHOT

Senator Coyne declared Pinchot had refused to sign the bill passed by the General Assembly that would provide millions for unemployment relief while at the same time trying to build up a state political machine.

Coyne predicted Allegheny County would give Davis a majority of 70,000; that Baldwin would carry the county by a substantial majority and that Councilman Michael J. Muldowney would be elected to Congress by a fair margin.

Dreams of Peace Blasted in Ozarks

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 9.—(AP)—Because Detroit was too noisy, a couple came here and picked the most isolated homestead in the Ozarks to live on. Now prospectors are blasting all around them for zinc and lead. And nothing can be done about it, the Land Office advises the harried pair.

hope through Secretary of State Stimson that it will be able to "curtail greatly the use of submarines and bombing planes."

What our delegation says at Geneva is of no consequence since France really is the League of Nations and France will pay no attention. She needs planes and submarines.

HERE IN America the government, if it has any brains, will develop bombing and other fighting planes, submarines, also explosive and other war gases, as fully as possible.

Airplanes, submarines, high explosives and war gas will make this country safe from attack, will put the fear of God and American vengeance into any nation that might attack us, and would enable this country to save half of what it spends now on Army and Navy, with greater efficiency.

Roosevelt Wins at Pitt As Political War Breaks

Politics, national and intercollegiate, were occupying the stage at the University of Pittsburgh today.

The students selected Franklin D. Roosevelt for President after going Democratic 3 to 1, according to news from the university's "model" political convention which opened last night in Memorial Hall, and simultaneously came a threat from the engineering school to withdraw from the student council.

The engineers threatened to withdraw from the council unless that body provides more equitable representation by April 13, according to Walter Rome, of the dean's office. The engineers contend that the dental school, through a fraternity hookup, has gained control of the student council.

Protests against the vote which on Monday defeated a measure to dissolve the student council by a count of 781 to 365, have been filed with the deans of both men and women.

No immediate action will be taken on the protests, according to Rome.

Meanwhile, in the poll, Roosevelt won by a slight margin over Alfred E. Smith. The convention opened last night with addresses by Mark Shields, of the Sun-Telegraph; John K. Morrow, of the Post-Gazette, and John B. Townley, of the Press.

In addition to his daily financial column, Mr. Rukeyser is noted as an author of four books on finance and is a member of the teaching staff of Columbia University.

HARRIS PLEADS FOR RELIEF DRIVE AS MAIN HOPE OF NEEDY

TALBOT FUNDS SEEN AS ONLY SLIGHT AID

Destitute Depend on Local Campaign; 1,051 Families Adopted on First Day

The Talbot relief fund bill, declared constitutional by the State Supreme Court, will not materially relieve the local situation and is not likely to have any effect immediately, Senator Frank J. Harris declared at the first report luncheon of the workers in the family-help-family campaign to provide funds for 28,000 destitute families in the county. He said:

"It is still necessary to take care of the 28,000 families until more permanent relief in the form of work or direct assistance can be provided. The Talbot bill funds, even if made available immediately, cannot last long, and, since it is certain that no bond issue money can be available before September, these families must be cared for until that time."

1,051 FAMILIES AIDED

At yesterday's luncheon, collections sufficient to care for 1,051 families for three months were reported. The second report of the volunteer workers will be held Monday in William Penn Hotel. Meanwhile, the workers are pressing forward in an effort to make the week-end count effectively.

More than 300 workers were present at the luncheon. Senator Harris told the volunteers that the Talbot bill provides $10 for each unemployed person in the state, and at that rate the $1,692,000 allotted to this county, would scarcely last more than six weeks.

GIFT TIME EXTENDED

The Senator pointed out that in view of the additional relief to come, subscribers to the family-help-family campaign might pay their gifts in four or five months instead of three, as first announced.

Among the guests at the luncheon were Paul Mellon, who spoke in behalf of the campaign; Max Rothschild, Dr. Thomas S. Arbuthnot, Marcus Rauh, Benno Jansen, C. A. Brooks, William Furey, Col. C. A. Brooks and W. C. McClure.

Women Leaders Rally For Relief Campaign

The task of caring for the 28,000 destitute families in Allegheny County was placed before the women of Allegheny County at a meeting of leaders from every women's organization in the county yesterday in Fort Pitt Hotel.

Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, chairman of the women's division of the family-help-family plan, presided. Speakers were Mrs. Helen Glenn Tyson, deputy of the State Department of Welfare, Senator Frank J. Harris, sponsor of the plan, and Roy A. MacGregor, chief of staff. Mrs. Tyson said:

"The challenge before this meeting is that of immediate, though temporary, need. Let us hope that Allegheny County will not have to go through the desperate times that Philadelphia experienced when its funds were exhausted. The Harris plan is designed to prevent such a catastrophe."

Mr. MacGregor declared that while the Harris plan is a humanitarian measure, it is also a necessary insurance that the ideas and institutions on which this country have been founded will be carried on.

Mrs. Irish reminded the women of the work they did during the World War and urged them to put forth the same effort now.

Mrs. Saul Lavine was appointed to organize the women in the city while the county organization was assigned to Mrs. R. Templeton Smith.

On Tuesday afternoon there will be a mass meeting in the Nixon Theater at which time Judge Sarah Soffel will speak. There also will be an hour's show and the appearance of Eugenie Leontovich, who will play next week at a local theater.

TALBOT RELIEF RULING STUDIED

HARRISBURG, April 9.—(AP.)—With the Talbot $10,000,000 relief act declared constitutional by the Supreme Court, state officials today studied the court decree to ascertain when the first payments may be made, on what basis they will be prorated and how the payments will affect state appropriations to hospitals and colleges.

Attorney General William A. Schnader said today that under the decision of the Supreme Court the Talbot act appropriations are a preferred claim against money in the general fund of the State Treasury, which was approximately $34,000,000 on March 31. In view of this situation, he said, he does not see how the State Treasurer and Auditor General can approve further payments of appropriations other than those for operation of the various state departments and the Talbot act.

Auditor General Charles A. Waters said the decision of the court raises the question of how much the state appropriations for hospitals, colleges and universities should be reduced if the payment of the Talbot act appropriations creates a deficit in the State Treasury for the biennium ending May 31, 1933.

Students Collecting Food for Day Nursery

Students of Miss Griffith's beauty school, Liberty avenue, have been collecting canned goods for the Day Nursery, North avenue, and today the first delivery was to be made, according to Miss Dee Griffith, head of the school. The collection was started after it was learned that 157 children are cared for daily at the nursery, but it cannot supply all the children with even one hot meal a day.

BATTLE MARKS DIVORCE SUIT

The marital differences of John Phillips, taxicab dispatcher, of 6612 Deary street, and Virginia Phillips, 7161 Westmoreland street, flared in the corridors of the City-County Building yesterday while they were waiting for a hearing of his divorce suit.

According to charges Mrs. Phillips later made before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, her husband approached her as she talked with two friends and struck her so hard with his elbow that she was knocked down. She preferred charges of assault and battery and surety of the peace, and a warrant was issued for Phillips. She was represented by Attorney A. J. Rosenbleet.

Phillips charged cruelty and indignities in his suit, hearing of which was postponed by a busy court.

2 ARMY FLIERS HURT; HURLEY FORCED DOWN

Ship Upsets Landing Near Waynesburg; Gale Stops Secretary at Uniontown

WAYNESBURG, Pa., April 9.—(AP.)—An Army plane, landing to avoid a pelting rainstorm, nosed over in a field near Jefferson late yesterday, injuring the pilot and a passenger.

Staff Sergt. Howard Miller, 27, of Gettysburg, was taken to Waynesburg Hospital suffering from a back injury and scalp wounds. The pilot, Lieut. W. G. Bowyer, 24, a West Point graduate, suffered cuts and bruises.

The same storm forced down a plane in which Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley was a passenger, at Burgess Field, Uniontown. He was flying from Washington to Indianapolis. Hurley remained overnight in Uniontown.

The plane that landed at Jefferson broke its propeller and a wing.

FARMERS AID INJURED

Farmers working in the field saw the plane nose over and rushed to the aid of the victims. Miller and Bowyer were brought here by automobile.

The plane, a Keystone bomber, had left the Keystone plant at Bristol, Pa., for Rockwell Field, California. Bowyer and Lieut. M. D. Burnside, flying another bomber, encountered rain and fog over the mountains after servicing their ships at Uniontown. Burnside turned back to Burgess Field.

ANSWERS ROOSEVELT

UNIONTOWN, Pa., April 9.—(AP.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's attack on the Hoover administration's economic policies drew a sharp reply last night from Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

Hurley issued a statement from a Uniontown hotel, where he spent the night after his plane was forced down in a rainstorm. He was to continue his journey to Indianapolis today.

Asserting the Governor of New York has placed himself among the carping critics of the President without suggesting an economic plan worthy of consideration," Hurley asked:

"If Gov. Roosevelt has an economic program, why didn't he submit it to his fellow Democrats who control the House of Representatives?"

The War Secretary visited Fort Necessity and addressed a bar association meeting.

RAIDER HUNTING OUTLAW SLAIN

TULSA, Okla., April 9.—(AP.)—Irv Kelley, former Sheriff of McIntosh County, was shot to death early today in a raid on the Bixby farm home of Ben Hargraves, father-in-law of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, notorious Oklahoma outlaw. Officers, who saw the shooting from a distance, said he was slain by Floyd in flight.

Officers said Kelley had led a posse to the Hargraves home, but had dismissed its members a short time before the shooting in the belief that Floyd was not at the home.

They said Floyd escaped in a motor car with a man they identified as Earl Birdwell, who also is wanted for a series of bank robberies and other crimes.

The officers had been watching the Hargraves home all night on the strength of a tip that Floyd and Birdwell were in hiding there. Kelley, since his defeat for re-election as Sheriff of McIntosh County, had been working for the reward of approximately $10,000 posted for Floyd's arrest.

Charles F. Bergman, 36, of 3731 East street, North Side, was denied custody of his son, David N. Bergman, 14, Perry High School student, and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Steele, of the North Side, who reared the boy after his mother's death in 1919, retained his custody, under a decision by Judge H. H. Rowand in Common Pleas Court.

Bergman obtained a writ of habeas corpus and the hearing developed that he married Annie McGawe August 3, 1916, and after her death in 1919 their son was placed in the care of the Steeles. Bergman remarried in 1922 and parted from his second wife in 1927, and has since lived with his mother, Mrs. Hattie Bergman Tagart.

Judge Rowand held that both homes were suitable for the boy, but said he was impressed by character of Mrs. Steele, by her affection for the boy and his apparent affection for her and his existing happy surroundings with the three Steele children.

The boy is heir to the $22,000 estate of his great-grandfather, David Nichol.

11 New Autos For White House; Bike for Curtis

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

If no news is good news it must work the other way round too.

But we're going to tell the Presidential candidates the good news from Washington. The White House has 11 brand new automobiles.

And a bicycle for the vice president.

Most of them were bought outright. But one was the result of a trade-in for Coolidge's iron horse and a lawn mower.

The Presidential candidates are certainly going to scramble for the nomination now. With 11 cars at his disposal a politician can attain his hope of being a one-man parade.

The slogan this campaign will be:

"If I Can't Make the White House, I'll Take the Garage."

Flight to Bring Ruth Nichols To City

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Ruth Nichols, society girl flier, who holds three women's world records in aviation, will leave New York next Saturday on a 3,000-mile goodwill flight for the National Council of Women. Miss Nichols goes as air ambassador for the 5,000,000 women in organizations which make up the council and which are co-operating in plans for the international congress of women at the Chicago World's Fair next year.

Whether she will stop in Pittsburgh on her way West or en route home, Miss Nichols has not yet decided, but in each of her stops, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Tulsa, Okla., Wichita, Kan., Omaha, Des Moines and Chicago, she will collect the signatures petitioning foreign governments to send distinguished representatives to the international congress.

Pittsburgh club women, by the way, have already obtained more than 2,000 of their quota of 25,000 signatures. Miss Nichols will take approximately two weeks for the trip, one in which she is especially interested because she feels the international congress will go far towards creating friendly understanding among the women of the world. She is vice president of the Women's International Aeronautical Association, the purpose of which is to promote good will through aviation.

Southern Club Holds Altruistic Day Tea

A beautifully appointed affair of yesterday was the Southern Club's altruistic day tea, for which the president, Mrs. Newell G. Alford, was hostess at her home in South Homewood avenue. The affair, which is an annual one, is given its name because the club members bring gifts of cigarets and playing cards for the Veterans' Hospital. There was no program. Mrs. Alford received alone and the altruistic committee and one or two others, under Mrs. Walter K. Long's chairmanship, served as aides.

These included Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald and Mrs. Frederick Marshall, who poured; Mrs. Paul Schollar, Mrs. H. Danforth Bates, Mrs. C. B. Ellis, Miss Julia Ellis, Mrs. James McFall, Mrs. Leonard Rawsthorne, Mrs. Frederick Skinner and Mrs. William J. Timblin.

The tea table had an exquisite centerpiece of lavender iris, jonquils and pussywillow with four lavender tapers standing in green crystal holders. On each window sill in the living room was an orange-colored urn of pottery filled with an effective arrangement of fresia, calendula, talisman roses and a single iris.

LOW-NECKED FROCK APPEARS IN NEWEST SPORTS ENSEMBLE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, April 9.—An ensemble isn't anything these days unless it has its own little matching hat. Nearly every house showed hats to go with its ensemble frocks for afternoon or sports use. It adds emphasis to the color scheme of frock and coat and gives the neat tailored look that is paramount this season. Something new is the sports ensemble with the low-necked frock. This, of course, means that the coat must be kept on, while on the street, at least when worn in town. No doubt this new idea will catch on if only for the reason that it is absolutely different and certainly novel. Jackets are mostly short and belted. This line has been sponsored by Worth for some time and several other designers also subscribe to it. Blue and white is overwhelmingly popular here, the white sparingly but effectively used. Shoulders still bear the burden of the mode, since nearly every model stresses its newness by its shoulder treatment. This goes for evening things as well as daytime clothes. Tucks are judiciously used and frocks are cut in one piece to accentuate the moulded line that dominates the spring mode.

* * *

SKETCHED IS A NEW ensemble that has excited much comment from both professional and private buyers. It is by Bruyere and is of a rough surfaced new jersey in navy blue. Decidedly new is the sports frock with a low-necked bodice, and it shouldn't be difficult to imagine the gasps when it was first shown. The bodice is cut and strapped just like an evening frock and is accented by white grosgrain ribbon. The frock is cut in one vertical piece and moulds the form, although there is a slight flare below the knees. The jacket is a short belted affair fitted with surface gores. The collar is of white grosgrain at the top and extends to the belt, the extension being of navy grosgrain, as is the belt. The tiny hat is of navy and white grosgrain ribbon.

Listening In-
—With the Radio Editor—

NO LESS THAN EIGHT figures of national prominence are brought to the microphone today to speak on diversified subjects over coast-to-coast networks.

Outstanding is an address by Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, leading financial authority, whose comments appear daily and Sunday in the Sun-Telegraph. He speaks on "The Business Depression and the Way Out" over KDKA tonight at 7:45. Mr. Rukeyser's talk, which deals with the factors blocking business recovery, is based on the results of a survey he has made of the nation's financial structure. The speaker, in addition to writing daily on finance, is a member of the faculty of Columbia University and is the author of four books on finance which are listed among the standard authorities.

Mr. Rukeyser

Alfred E. Smith, His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt make a plea for the advancement of social welfare work during a broadcast of the Catholic Charities luncheon at the Hotel Astor in New York, heard through KDKA at 2:30.

Speaking on the soldiers' bonus over a nation-wide network, Wright Patman, Texas Congressman, is heard over KDKA at 6:30. Congressmen Royal C. Johnson, Republican, of South Dakota, and John E. Rankin, Democrat, of Mississippi, debate the bonus question over WJAS at 10:15.

Prof. Albert Sheppard, of the School of Commerce of New York University, opens a new series of scientific broadcasts over a Columbia network and WJAS at 8:30. The program, originating in a laboratory classroom, includes the roar of bursting soap bubbles, explosions in a glass of beer, and the sound of music as relayed by a thread from a bath towel.

Program Pointers

WAYNE KING and his orchestra, playing at the Anatole Club ball at the Hotel Schenley, are heard over an extensive NBC hookup through WCAE facilities when the "magic carpet" piloted by Walter Winchell makes a three-point landing in Pittsburgh tonight at 10. This is the second time Winchell's rug has headed for Pittsburgh, the previous journey having been to the WCAE studios for a program by Jan Garber and his orchestra.

Mr. King

The struggle of an English-born Quaker, Joseph Lister, to convince the medical minds of his day that he could abolish the horrors of the operating wards in hospitals is dramatized in the Danger Fighters program over KDKA at 8.

Billy Weixel and his band leave for Chicago today on business . . . While there, Billy expects to have a nice long chat with his former coach, Ted Weems . . . Ann Leaf, the girl organist heard with Ben Alley over WJAS, recently completed her second musical composition, "Blue Hours" . . . Her first, "Song of the Midnight," is her theme song.

Skippy has organized a mystery club, with passwords 'n' everything . . . He tells all about it today.

The Allegheny College Glee Club, making its annual spring tour, presents half-hour broadcasts of college songs and semi-classical selections over KDKA at 2 p. m., and over WWSW at 6.

A true story of the Pennsylvania State Police, dealing with a baffling murder case in Westmoreland County, is told by Elmer W. Farber, police historian, over KDKA at 4:30.

The minstrel program on KDKA every Saturday at 9, moves to a regular Monday night spot after tonight.

Don Bestor's Orchestra broadcasts three times over WWSW from Motor Square Garden today, marking the close of the General Motors Show there. He's on the air at 2 p. m., 7 and 9 p. m.

Fan Fare

ELIZABETH BARTHELL, the Dixie songster heard three mornings a week over WJAS, got her start in music because her father developed a fancy for "The Rosary" and wanted someone in the house who could play it . . . So Elizabeth took piano lessons and played "The Rosary" when her father was around, and ragtime when he wasn't . . . She was literally forced to take her first audition, because she got scared and didn't show up at the appointed time, so another was arranged . . . She's tall and slender, likes swimming and hockey, gets rhapsodic over bridge, and of course, over that good old southern cooking.

Miss Barthell

Paul Whiteman is going to hold some "Youth of America" auditions for youngsters between the ages of 3 and 10 . . . The winner will be heard with Whiteman during his regular program next Friday night . . . The Mills Brothers, Pittsburgh visitors next week, present a program over WJAS Monday night at 6:45.

Capt. Frank Hawks' crash Friday spoiled all the happy plans of NBC officials and a large group of notables for a gala broadcast in his honor Monday night, when he was to have flown to Porto Rico.

STOCK SELLING LAID TO NEW TAX BILL

Hodge Podge Levy Measure Offsets Good Effects of Reconstruction Program

RUKEYSER ON KDKA TONIGHT AT 7:45

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, April 9.—The recent fresh display of hysteria in the stock and bond markets further reflected the fact that the bolstering up of financial sentiment by the Washington reconstruction program, including the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Glass-Steagall bill, had been offset by the adoption of a hodge podge tax bill by the House of Representatives.

Mr. Rukeyser

Has not the time come for clear thinking and decisive action?

Is it not apparent that palliatives which deal with symptoms and not with causes at best only temporarily stay the deflatory tides.

MILLIONS IDLE

How long must this country fabulously rich in gold, raw materials, skilled labor and high grade technology, continue to move backward because industry and commerce have been unbalanced by disturbed human relationships? Of course there will seemingly be excess plant capacity for everything as long as 8,000,000 workers are without jobs, as long as half as many more are on part time employment, and as long as 8,000,000 toilers on the farms continue to be almost pauperized by prevailing prices, which are low relatively as well as absolutely.

Restoration of consumer purchasing power becomes a prime step in any actual relief plan. Enlargement of permanent construction activities, either by private or public agencies, would tend to reverse deflationary processes, and to enable re-employment of at least part of the idle. From this viewpoint, the Pennsylvania Railroad request to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a loan to finance continuation of its electrification program would be more helpful than the recent loans asked for the purpose of paying off obligations to bankers.

POTENTIALITIES LARGE

The potentialities for applying large visioned management and consumer engineering to the prevailing economic deadlock are large, but thus far progress has been halted by the disposition of the administration to try to be radical and conservative at the same time. Furthermore, numerous business and financial so-called leaders, who have most to conserve, have been apathetic and sterile of ideas.

But the recent outburst of pessimism was unreasoning. Experience indicates that patience and courage are needed to bring new workable ideas, which are at first scoffed at, into acceptance. There should be no serious worry about the ability of business ultimately to reach a new equilibrium. On the other hand, the opportunity exists for intelligent social managers to seek to attain the new stability without further sacrificing the American standard of living, and without unduly prolonging the period of hardship for the unemployed.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP)—Bank clearings for the first week of April show some improvement over the total of the last week of March. There was also an increase a year ago, although it was not so large, owing probably to a difference in the dates at that time. Total clearings this week for all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $5,695,302,000, still show a heavy loss from the record of last year, the decline this week being 35.3 per cent. At New York City clearings were $3,899,562,000, a reduction of 38.9 per cent, while the total for the cities outside of New York, of $1,795,740,000, was 25.8 per cent smaller.

The quarterly settlements due at this time naturally would increase bank clearings over those of March and the amount this week is larger than that of last week by $1,630,756,000. A year ago the increase was only $276,210,000. Clearings at nearly all centers continue much below those of last year.

The figures at leading cities as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., showing increases and decreases as compared with same period a year ago, follow:

STOCK MARKET MAKES BRISK UPSWING

Early 2 to 5-Point Gains Reduced Slightly; News of Probe Startles Bears

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP.)—The unexpected announcement of the start of the Senate inquiry into the stock market Monday gave bears a rude start at the opening today, and prices were pushed up sharply, as they rushed to cover.

The rush of buying subsided after the first few minutes, however, and early advances of 2 to 5 points in numerous popular issues were reduced by a point or so. American Telephone shot up 3¾, then slipped back a point. United States Steel rose 2⅞, only to back up about a point. Auburn made an extreme gain of 5, and Santa Fe sold up nearly 4. Standard of California, however, sagged fractionally to a new low, in response to its earnings statement.

While Wall street has felt that there had been a large volume of real liquidation in the past week, as evidenced by sweeping declines in preferred issues, the very duration of the decline had led brokerage quarters to look for something to bring a turn. Recent figures on the volume of the short position as of the start of the month showed little change from a month previously.

There was little in the overnight news, aside from the announcement of the start of the Senate inquiry into the stock market, to influence prices.

Weekly business and trade surveys still failed to provide convincing evidence of any change in the generally flat business situation. Resumption of the gold flow to France was viewed with equanimity, since it was felt that the Glass-Stagall act has placed the reserve in a position to spare more metal than France could draw.

In the early dealings in foreign exchange, the French franc held steadily against the dollar, still above the outgoing gold point from New York. Sterling was also firm, cables opening at $3.79⅜, up 1⅛ cents.

Briggs, Budd Wheel Operations Expand

DETROIT, April 9.—Activity at the Briggs Manufacturing Company plants is now at the highest point since early last summer and will be materially increased when fabrication of new orders gets under way, according to H. E. Hund, vice president and general manager.

PHILADELPHIA, April 9.—Budd Wheel Company has increased production schedules for April and May as a result of orders from automobile makers. The April schedule will be larger than for any month since October, 1931.

Dealers Reduce Acceptance Rates

NEW YORK, April 9.—Leading dealers have reduced bid and asked prices on bankers' acceptances for all maturities ¼ of 1 per cent. New rates are:

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Comfort

My last Spring's love I can't remember now,
And I am bitter wrought that I outlive
The memory of every tender vow,
The sweet, enchanting thrill that kisses give.
I would recall with poignancy the place,
The time, the spell, "the castles built in Spain,"
The foolish words, the lure of his dear face,
And then emote about the after-pain.

But time's a cure. I find no compromise.
Though I'd prefer remembering a kiss,
Or yet the color of his slanted eyes
Is there no recompense to gain for this?

Oh, yes, I know, now I have thought upon it—
I can re-read another Don Wahn sonnet.

—Jane Sayre.

Poor Hollywood

The tell it on Marc Connelly, whose adaptation of "Green Pastures" was among the thrills. He was introduced to a hambo in Hollywood as "an author." The actor was impressed.

"An author, eh? You mean you have a book with your name on it?"

Marc confessed that there was a book of his plays.

"You mean," exclaimed the sapidillo, "that it has stiff covers and up front there is a blank page for writing on it?"

Marc thought so.

"That's swell," said the breathless one. "I'll tell you what you do. Get me one and write in it and I'll put it on the table in my house."

"What for?" asked Marc.

"I dunno," confessed the screenuisance, "but they're all doin' it out here—it's getting to be sort of a fad."

In Fewer Words

Maybe light wines and beers wouldn't bring back prosperity, says Judge Shuttleworth, but it would help us to forget about it.

I Don't Believe It

Jimmy Durante take it from Jack Harvey, his manager, attended a concert the other night and after taking his seat James chirped:

"What are they playing?"

"Beethoven's Fifth Symphony," oblized the matron in the next chair.

"Phew!" phew'd Jimmy, "are we that late?"

Maybe?

It is David Murray's observation that maybe business has been merged with slow motion.

Ouch!

One of the better capsule criticisms was George S. Kaufman's, who said in part:

"From the laughter that came from the rear rows one imagines that a joke was cracked back there."

Rebuttal

One of the Detroit observers devoted an entire pillar the other day to a quarrel with the critics, and employed the stale thrust about critics who "cannot be expected to enjoy a new play, after hurrying through a meal and suffering from indigestion."

That the critics do not suffer from indigestion we have never heard denied. But the better plays have always served to take their minds off it, at any rate. Only one critic in our time, we thought, failed his followers. He was the reviewer who snubbed the important premiere of the evening to cover a new entry which attracted the other fellow's assistants.

And we learned why. His wife's sister had written the show and his report was the only favorable one. The play, however, perished within the fortnight—and so did his job.

He is now free-lancing, which is another way of getting poor.

Recognition

Of course it probably never happened, but one of the pillar's deputies argues that it did. It was after the opera. It appears, and an expensively-groomed woman ankled by the stage door just as one of the singers came out.

"Oh," she said, "have I the honor of almost bumping into the renowned basso I just heard?"

The flattered fellow bowed low and said:

"What can I do for you, madam?"

"I can't find my car," she pouted. "Be a good boy and call out 'Charlie' at the top of your voice?"

Gosh, Yes

The office cynic was reading about a baby born during the height of a tornado.

"That's finding out too early," he groaned, "what life is like."

The Squelch Proper

Then there was the time that a revenue agent testified against Texas Guinan and helped close one of her asylums. After the trial he called her up and told her he was sorry.

"Let me show you I mean it," he said. "Come and take dinner with me."

"No thanks," purred Texas. "I don't like your fur coat. I never did care much for stool-pigeon."

Add Slanguage

On Broadway "She wears hairpins" means she's old fashioned and goes home too early. . . . "She's full of barb-wire" is a gal that's hard to meet. . . . and checks that bounce are called "Orphan Paper."

Orchids for a Lillie

At the premier of the new Guild production of Shaw's "Too True to Be Good," Beatrice Lillie ran off with most of the honors.

Between acts, frixample, one critic asked a confrere:

"Do you think Lillie is speaking Shaw's lines as he wrote them?"

"No," was the retort, "as he ought to have written them."

"Always Belittlin'"

A Western columnist gave up his job because, he confessed, he ran out of ideas.

So they made him editor.

Film Is Funny, Stage Show Too Sad

By GEORGE SEIBEL

What was once said about a certain actor's Hamlet that it was funny without being vulgar, can be said of the stage show at the Penn Theater this week. It's the very opposite—vulgar without being funny. First there is a comedian in gray and a comedienne in green whose act belongs in cheap burlesque, not in a family theater; then there is Jimmie Durante, the famous Schnozzle, who engages in some of the roughest and noisiest horse-play seen outside of a circus. He is tiresome, and the four fake horses who perform a ballet are much funnier. A singer and the Chester Hale dancing, which is very graceful, are the only things that redeem this stage show from being dull and offensive.

Mr. Seibel

The picture, "The Passionate Plumber," also is rough horseplay, but it has the merit of being very funny and in spots original. Based on a comedy once played by Jeanne Eagels, "Her Cardboard Lover," no one would recognize it. Buster Keaton is the plumber who is hired to play lover to a lady who wants to get rid of another suitor. She finds it even harder to get rid of Buster.

Keaton has many amusing monkeyshines, especially in the duel scene and in the Casino, where the moth-balls from his dress suit run over the roulette wheels. He has invented a pistol which flashes a light on the mark aimed at, and every time he wants to show this pistol to the French general he is suspected of being an assassin. He hears that the owners of the Casino put a roll of bills into the pockets of every gambler who commits suicide to stop stories that he has killed himself because of losses, so he pretends to shoot himself and gets his roll of bills.

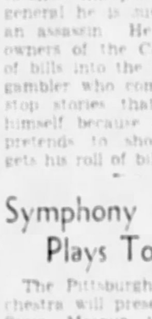
WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 8.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

At a luncheon yesterday a Congressman's wife couldn't read President Hoover's handwriting, and Mrs. Hoover had to interpret it for her. Now that can mean various things. Can a Congressman's wife read? Can't Mr. Hoover write? (All of 'em being Republicans.) The chances are that both of the above are right, and that the reason Mrs. Hoover could read it was, she remembered what she had told the President to say in the message to the women. Headline says: "Society Women of New York Smoking Pipe." The only way to break 'em from it is not to watch 'em do it.



Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

Parade, Race In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Impressive pictures of the observance of the fifteenth anniversary of the entry by the United States into the World War are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, being seen in both the Fulton and Penn theaters. The day was commemorated in Washington with a gigantic parade and President Hoover and members of his cabinet and other high officials are shown in the reviewing stand. There is a vivid description by the Globe Trotter.

That spring has come is demonstrated by scenes taken throughout the country by Hearst Metrotone News roving cameraman. There are kids on back fences, sweethearts embracing on fire-escapes, esthetic dancers disporting in woodlands, and other scenes.

PARIS AT RACES

All Paris, including Paul Doumer, president of France, turned out for the Presidential Steeplechase at the famous Auteuil track. The race is two and a half miles over hazardous jumps and at the most dangerous fence six jockeys come to grief as their horses stumble.

Fritz Kley, Germany's "rubber man" wrestler, gets the decision from Sandor Szabo in a laugh-provoking match at Madison Square Garden, New York. Try as he would, Szabo is unable to get a winning hold on the former contortionist and finally Kley, in a most unexpected manner, puts his rival to the floor.

A LARGE FAMILY

Obermauerbarh, Germany, claims the champion family, the Aidelsburgers. Pictures show Poppa and Momma Aidelsburger with their 25 children. President Hindenburg is godfather of the youngest, a babe in arms.

The exciting contest between Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., and Mrs. Opal Hill, of Kansas City, Mo., for the North-South golf title, is shown at Pinehurst, N. C.

'Girl Crazy' In Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Girl Crazy," film in the Warner adapted from the musical comedy of the same title, is an amusing picture in which the romantic angle, carried by Eddie Quillan and Arline Judge, just serves to get Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey into a lot of funny mix-ups with a couple of western bad-men. While their antics are laughable, the loudest guffaws go to Mitzi Green for an imitation of stuttering Roscoe Ates imitating Bing Crosby. In the film Mitzi is the small sister of Bert Wheeler, a child of the family pest type. She's constantly in pursuit of someone on whom to try her imitations and finally finds a victim. She takes off Mr. Crosby to the proverbial "t" and then impersonates Ates, George Arliss and Edna May Oliver each supposedly imitating Crosby.

Wheeler earns his share of the titters as a taxicab driver, who consents to run as sheriff against a real tough western guy, and is elected. Woolsey is a show manager who takes his crew of girls to a dude ranch conducted by Quillan, via Wheeler's decrepit taxi, fare $349.30, half of which Bert agrees to forget, whereupon Woolsey generously says he will forget the other half. That's a sample of the spoken humor. The slapstick fun is the customary variety of these two comics, somewhat influenced by the Mack Sennett school of olden days.

Their usual feminine running mate, Dorothy Lee, is on hand prominently.

BITS OF LIFE
All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

The Fable of Ambrose Dingleberry

THAT GENIAL producer, Mr. Ambrose Dingleberry, tossed restlessly in his bed. Try as he might, sleep would not come. He tried counting sheep. No use. So he sat up and snapped on the light.

Ambrose knew exactly what the trouble was. He was worried. Yes, my affable clients, that's exactly what it was. He was worried about theatrical conditions. He had lost much of his money in the last three years. Another unsuccessful production would just about ruin him. Where was a producer to turn these days? What was the end to be?

He sighed heavily. If only something would happen. If some author would only step into his office and toss an "Abie's Irish Rose" or a "Rose Marie" into his lap. If the public would only realize that he was badly in need of its money. If Wall Street would only return to normalcy. If. If. If.

"Good heavens," groaned Mr. Dingleberry, "what's the use of all these ifs? Where does a man get by wishing and iffing? Nothing ever happens to let you know."

Came a squeaky voice from a corner of the room.

"I wouldn't be to do certain about that," it said.

The producer's eyes almost popped from their sockets. He had been lying there for hours but he hadn't heard a sound. He strained his eyes.

A very tiny man was standing right beside him. He wasn't more than a foot tall. And on his face there was an elfish grin.

"Well?" muttered the producer. "What are you, a midget?"

The visitor shook his head.

"No, my friend," he replied. "I am a gnome."

"A gnome," repeated Mr. Dingleberry vaguely.

"Exactly," asserted the intruder. "I'm a first cousin to an elf, a goblin or a fairy. Surely you've heard of my cousins?"

Ambrose blinked.

"I don't get all this," he said somewhat peevishly. "Just how did you get in here and what do you want? I'm a tired man and I'm worried. What do you want from me?"

The dwarf placed a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles on his nose and climbed up on the producer's bed.

"Mr. Ambrose Dingleberry," he announced, "we have been looking over your record as a producer on Broadway and we have come to the conclusion that you are one of the nicest men in town. Aside from the fact that you have gypped the speculators right and left—and that, of course, doesn't count—you have but two black marks upon your record.

"If you can explain those black marks, we are going to help you by granting you any one wish that you may desire. Heed me carefully now, because it will mean everything to you.

"First you are charged with the murder of your first wife. Why did you do it?"

Ambrose's fists clenched.

"We had a little poker club consisting of six men," he snapped, "and whenever we met in my home, she insisted on playing with us."

The gnome extended his hand.

"I congratulate you," he cried. "That's the perfect explanation. And now for the second and last black mark. There have been reports that, before your turned producer, you were once a dramatic critic. Is that true?"

Mr. Dingleberry bit his lip. He shivered. Anger blazed in his eyes. He pointed to the door.

"Go!" he commanded. "That's the dealiew insult of all. I don't care if you are able to bring me all the gold in the world. I will not stand for any such terrible abuses. Get out of here."

His mood changed. The tears came. He shook with emotion.

"Oh," he moaned, "what have I ever done that I should have such a thing said about me?"

The little man leaned forward and patted the producer's hand.

"There, there," he sympathized. "I'm sorry. I know now that it's all a lie. I'm sorry I ever mentioned it. Look."

Mr. Dingleberry looked up. From beneath his blouse, the gnome produced a tiny lamp. He caressed it tenderly.

"This," he announced softly, "is the magic lamp. You are now to make the one wish for something that you want more than anything in the world. One, and only one, and it will be granted on the second. Come, what is it?"

The producer gazed off into space.

"I have always wanted to peer into the future," he murmured dreamily. "I want to know how conditions will be and what I will be doing in future years. Yes, that's it. Here is my one wish. Get me a copy of the New York Times five years from today."

The gnome clapped his hands and gazed at the lamp.

"Abadaba," he chanted. "Toodle-oodles. Easy, baby. Look at me. Hot-Cha!"

And before he knew what had happened, Mr. Dingleberry's arms were loaded with a copy of the New York Times. It was the copy for which he had wished; the copy that was dated five years ahead.

Feverishly he turned to the dramatic pages. For the moment, his visitor was forgotten. He quivered nervously as he looked at the list of shows that were then being presented on Broadway.

What was all this? "Ambrose Dingleberry presents—" "Ambrose Dingleberry presents—" "Ambrose Dingleberry presents—" "Ambrose Dingleberry presents—"

He swallowed hard. Of the 50 shows on the list, he was the producer of fully 40 of them. He would be the most successful producer of all time. His eyes found a news note on the same page.

"At the Earl Carroll Theater tonight," it read, "Mr. Ambrose Dingleberry will present his forty-second production of the season. It is estimated that this great manager's plays thus far this year have earned him at least $10,000,000."

The producer threw out his chest. He had known all the time that he was the greatest of them all. He closed the dramatic section and turned to the front page. Suddenly his expression changed. The smile of contentment faded from his face. His eyes had fallen upon another piece of news.

He had died the same morning! . . .

Homicide Rate Here Less Than Average

Pittsburgh's homicide rate last year was 2.3 less per 100,000 population than the average of 164 cities in the country according to figures compiled by The Spectator, insurance trade publication. There were 8.5 wilful deaths for each 100,000 persons, compared to 10.8 for the other cities.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Spectators witnessing "Grand Hotel" in the Alvin next week likely as not will include Herman Shumlin, director of the play and one-half of the producing firm. Mr. Shumlin has a habit of dropping in every so often since the play departed from New York and took to the road. He thinks plays, like humans, have to be watched else they'll take cold, so he checks up on "Grand Hotel" occasionally. So far he has found nothing wrong either from an artistic, technical or business standpoint, for the Vicki Baum play has been a distinct money-maker wherever it has appeared.

Regis Toomey, Pittsburgh actor, former student of Pitt, will confer with a New York producer relative to appearing in a musical comedy. He will fly to the Metrop as soon as there is an end to his engagement in the Stanley where he is a current stage feature. Regis has been considered one of those "local boys who made good" ever since he registered in "Alibi" a couple of seasons ago.

Tropic Stuff In Davis

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Panama Flo," one of those movies that have been bobbing up from time to time ever since Sadie Thompson demonstrated what a nice spot for melodrama the tropics could be, is in the Davis.

Helen Twelvetrees is Flo. And what a time she has with Charles Bickford dragging her off into the jungles and threatening to clout her on the jaw. And that language isn't ours. It's Mr. Bickford's.

However, Helen isn't any meek little lady herself. She claws, bites, scratches and drinks her liquor straight. And she goes in, too, for a bit of thievery.

Robert Armstrong is in the cast. He makes love to Helen and flies around in an airplane.

The jungle scenes are too made-to-order to be convincing, even if a crocodile is around.

Stanley Has 'Play Girl' On Screen

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Play Girl" opened yesterday on the Stanley screen. It's mostly about a little shop girl, who marries a young gambler and is scared almost to death at the thought of motherhood.

Loretta Young and Norman Foster have the romantic leads and they do well enough with their parts. Winnie Lightner and Guy Kibbee are in the supporting cast. Winnie manages some comedy as a sales girl assigned to the plumbing department.

Loretta doesn't approve of her husband's gambling and they have a spat when he draws $90, which it took her three months to save, out of the bank. She packs his suitcase and tells him to get out. She thinks he used the money to play the ponies. Instead, he spent the $90 for a baby carriage.

GAMBLING HEROINE

Anyhow, the first thing you know Loretta herself is betting on the horses. She sees the name Baby Mine on a racing form, has a hunch, and places a bet. Of course, Baby Mine wins.

Eventually, as far as Loretta is concerned, "Baby Mine" means more than a race horse. And her husband comes back to her, so everything is blue-birdish at the finale.

MR. TOOMEY ON STAGE

Regis Toomey, who, back in 1916, used to be the star in Mrs. Yeaman's elocution class in Peabody High School and who, in recent years, has been trekking towards movie stardom, is back in his home town doing the personal-appearing act on the Stanley stage. He sings several songs, tells Dick Powell, who goes into pictures in two weeks himself, all about Hollywood, and puts over an old Jack Pearl skit. The home town folks receive him well.

Mr. Powell sings that "Give Yourself a Slap on the Back" song and sends the boys of his band among the audience as back-slapping demonstrators. A couple of dancers do the wriggly, oriental stuff effectively. Jerry Cole, accordionist, and two rough and tumble lads also are featured. Broudy does a "Russian Rhapsody" as his overture and Armstrong is at his organloguing.

Sales-Lady

Winnie Lightner portrays a sales-lady, who sells plumbing fixtures, in "Play Girl," current film in the Stanley.

SPORT COMMENT

Garbark to Be Catcher.

SIX PAIRS OF BROTHERS IN MAJORS

IN SPITE OF an unusual number of shifts breaking up such combinations, there will be more pairs of brothers than ever operating in the major baseball leagues when the new season is launched next Tuesday. No fewer than five sets have been separated by releases. Outfielder Louis Finney, brother of Hal, the Pirate catcher, was sent to Oakland by the A's; Pitcher Joe Heving, brother of John, the Mackian backstop, was turned over to Indianapolis by the Giants; Outfielder Harvey Walker, brother of Gerald, also a Detroit fly-chaser, was shipped to Toronto by the Tigers; Pitcher Bob Johnson, brother of Roy, Detroit gardener, was let go unconditionally by the White Elephants, and Harry Dudley, pitching brother of Clise, a hurler on the same club, was dropped by the Phillies.

Lloyd Waner

Even after that deep cut, six pairs of brothers remain in the big show, with the Pittsburgh club not only having the greatest set of all in such stars as Lloyd and Paul Waner, but also presenting the lone instance in which two brothers are playing for the same club.

TWO OF THE other family pairs in the majors are, like the Waners, holdovers from previous seasons. One is made up of Wesley Ferrell, in whom the Indians have one of the greatest pitchers in the country, and Rick, crack catcher of the Browns, while the other is composed of Luke Sewell, Cleveland maskman, and Joe, who will be either the regular or extra third baseman of the Yankees.

Of the rest, Oscar Roettger, new first sacker of the A's, is a brother of Wally, Red outfielder; the Reds also have picked up Otto Bluege, a shortstop, who is a brother of Ossie, third baseman of the Senators, and a brand-new pair has come into the National League in George Knothe, a shortstop of the Phillies, and Fritz, third baseman of the Braves.

MENTION OF THE Sewells brings to mind that Joe may not yet be done as a regular after all. Third base in the Yankee lineup still is a problem to Manager Joe McCarthy. Lyn Lary is faster than Sewell and represents greater offensive strength, but his fielding has been erratic, particularly his throwing, and McCarthy may give the place to Joe in the end for a gain in defensive consistency.

A similar puzzle confronts McCarthy in center field. Earl Combs has been playing uniformly good ball, but you can't laugh off a batting average of .609, such as Sammy Byrd has made in the spring practice games, so Combs may have to go to the bench to make room for Byrd.

IF YOU HAVE any doubt that the American League ball is still much livelier than the one used in the National, just listen to Chuck Klein: "I carry an American League ball around all the time now to keep from going into a batting slump. When I feel that I am not hitting just right I take a couple of cuts at the lively ball and feel better. Some of the fans appeared disappointed when we did not hunt in our games with the A's at their park. Why hunt when you can slam that lively ball over the fence? We'll do all the hunting necessary when we play in the National League."*

Hack Wilson

IT WILL NOT be due to any lack of earnest effort if Hack Wilson doesn't make a complete success of his comeback with the Dodgers and show a return to something close to the form he displayed when he was the reigning home-run king as a Cub.

There has been no harder worker in any training camp this spring. When Hack wasn't toiling in the outfield he stationed himself at third base and fielded grounders batted by Casey Stengel until his uniform was dripping wet and perspiration rolled down his face.

BETWEEN THE STRENUOUS workouts on the field and adhering to a light diet, Wilson has reduced his weight from 220 pounds to 207, and is five pounds below his figure of two years ago, when he had his greatest season and made 56 homers.

There is no question that fans all over the country are pulling hard for the Martinsburg mauler to make good in his comeback. In every town the Dodgers visited on the spring trip he received plenty of encouragement and drew a round of applause each time he stepped to the plate.

THE FACT THAT preliminary chemical tests of Phar Lap's stomach showed no trace of poison was not surprising to American turfmen. They had never doubted that colic was the cause of his death. Speaking as a former owner of thoroughbreds, W. C. Vreeland, veteran racing expert, says colic is a dangerous disease that has quickly killed many a good horse and may develop from various causes. "One of my own became a victim of it because he bolted his oats," he explains. "He ate so ravenously that he would not stop, properly to grind the grain. I understand that Phar Lap had been fed some grass, alfalfa and rye. The alfalfa would not have hurt him, but if the rye had been cut and permitted to stand over night, and contained only a small portion that was in any way old, one can readily realize what killed him. Rye ferments very quickly and poisons the stomach."*

THOUGH HE WILL not return to Allegheny College when the next basketball season begins, Coach C. D. (Dick) Baker leaves behind him a brilliant record both as a player and a mentor that assures a lasting place for him on the roll of athletic greats at the Meadville institution.

Some interesting statistics compiled by C. W. Johnson, Meadville sport scribe, tell the story of a career that entitles Baker to a ranking among the foremost figures in the history of college basketball in this part of the country. He has been a winner ever since his prep days at Butler High School.

BAKER MADE THE varsity team of 1907 in his first year at Allegheny, and though never weighing more than 135 pounds starred for four seasons at forward, and was captain in his sophomore and senior years. He was a strong factor in the great record made by Allegheny in those four years—41 victories and only six defeats.

Through Dick's 10-year coaching span at Meadville, from 1923 to 1932, inclusive, his teams won 93 games while losing 69. He won only one tri-state district championship, that of 1927, but his fives were generally in the fight, and in only two seasons did they lose more games than they won. Baker's record will live long after his departure from the Alligator courts.

Bob Garbark

SEVERAL FORMER COLLEGE baseball players have been showing up impressively in major league tryouts this spring, but Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, of the Cleveland American League club, is confident that he will have a prospect surpassing the majority when Bob Garbark, member of a noted Pittsburgh athletic family reports to the Indians following his graduation from Allegheny College. Bob was playing the outfield when an Indian scout discovered him in 1930, but it is said the Cleveland management now plans to convert him into a catcher. In addition to his baseball work, Garbark has starred in football and basketball for four years at Allegheny, and is rated by many as the school's best all-time all-around athlete.

DISTRICT STARS FARE POORLY AT STATE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 9. (AP.)—Thirty-two college warriors proved their right to places in the Olympic boxing tryout lists by reaching the semi-final round of the first National Collegiate Olympic championship tournament.

A crowd of 5,000 in the Penn State Gymnasium saw a field of 66 boxers from 33 universities, who started in the preliminaries yesterday afternoon, whittled down last night to 32 finalists in eight classes.

By the rules of the tournament, all semi-finalists qualify automatically for the Olympic tryouts in San Francisco, July 20, 21 and 23, but the National Collegiate committee, meeting today, may decide to choose 32 qualifiers for the tryouts without strict adherence to the original plan.

STATE BOXERS LEAD

Penn State led the list with five men in the semi-finals to be staged this afternoon. The finals are listed for tonight.

Army qualified three Cadets, Syracuse, Tulane, Washington State and Columbus University, Washington, D. C., two men each. Single survivors lasted through the 32 battles for Loyola, of Baltimore; Loyola, of New Orleans; Temple, West Virginia, Florida, Virginia, Yale, Georgia Tech, Catholic University, Cornell, New Hampshire, Duquesne, Western Maryland and Princeton.

Eight of the 32 bouts ended in knockouts. Only one accident marred the program. After winning his preliminary match from Ed Collins, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, by decision, Cecil Hawkins, West Virginia 175-pounder, was found to have suffered a broken jaw.

DEPIERO ADVANCES

Only two Pittsburgh district scrappers advanced to the semi-finals. Tony DePiero, of Duquesne, after drawing a bye in the first round in the 175-pound class, defeated Kenoy Lokensgard, of Washington State, in the second round. Pete Puglia, of West Virginia, a 118-pounder, gained the round before the final without pulling on a glove, due to defaults and scarcity of opposition.

Jack Shricker, of Pitt, started off in fine fashion by defeatng Ed O'Connor, of North Dakota, but was beaten in the second round by the sensational Joe Moran, of Syracuse, after a great scrap.

Carnegie Tech's lone entry, Abe Konick, a 135-pounder, was knocked out by Jimmy Hagan, of the Army, in the third round.

Freddy Moore, of the Dukes, was beaten in the initial round by Nick Del Genio, of Yale, and Pete D'Allesandro, of Temple, knocked out Fred (Speedy) Vitulla, of Duquesne, in the third round. The summary:

Wykoff Warned To Take Long Layoff

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—(AP.)—Frank Wykoff, University of Southern California's champion sprinter and claimant of the world 100-yard record, has been told by his physician that if he runs within a month he might be through as a sprinter.

The sprinter is suffering from a seriously pulled muscle near his hip, and Dr. John Wilson, a specialist, advised a long layoff.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE FORTIFIED CITY OF NORTH AMERICA—Quebec, which claims the distinction of being the only walled city in the North American continent, resembles in picturesqueness a medieval European town rather than a city of the New World. It is the oldest city in Canada. The fortress consists of a citadel crowning the summit of Cape Diamond, and covering about 40 acres at a height of 333 feet above the level of the river. In addition, there is the Chateau Frontenac, built in 1823, in the style of an old French chateau, on the exact site where Champlain's residence stood in the days of New France. The fortifications, now obsolete for defensive purposes, add greatly to the romantic appearance of this Gibraltar of America. THE BOOK THAT NEVER WAS WRITTEN—Royal W. Figg, the author of the book that never was written, was a printer in the employ of an old established printing firm in Richmond, Va. The title of this unique book was "Where Men Only Dared to Go, or the Story of a Boy Company." It was set up by the author entirely out of his head, as it was not written and no manuscript ever existed. Although this manner of producing a book violated all precedent, the book was distinguished by perfect diction, a lucid style and purity of expression throughout its 263 pages and enjoyed a splendid sale.

SOCCER TITLE PLAY OPENS

The first game in the final round for the Western Pennsylvania challenge cup, featuring Union Switch and the Shannon Morry's, will be played at Scott High School field, North Braddock, this afternoon. The contest will be the first of a three-game series, providing one club does not win the first two battles.

Fans in the district are openly divided regarding the outcome of the game, with the American style of soccer displayed by the Morry's on tap against the distinct Scotch, or old country style soccer, flashed by the Switchmen.

ROBINS FARM DAY

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn Robins have announced the release of Clyde (Pea Ridge) Day, right hand pitcher, to the Minneapolis Club of the American Association as part payment for George Kelly, veteran first baseman Day will join the Minneapolis team Monday.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania have been a cradle of collegiate football for many years, but in recent times the great game of baseball has found small shelter among the district's institutions of learning. More's the pity, too, for there are any number of versatile athletes in the region who would pounce on a chance to perform on the diamond.

At the Penn State Club of Pittsburgh luncheon yesterday, I enjoyed an interesting sports discussion with Harry (Lefty) McIlveen and others who are ever ready to break out in a rash on subjects of this nature. Lefty McIlveen was an outfielder for the Yankees almost 25 years ago and a Pirate pitcher even before that but the rugged sorrel-top indicates by his appearance that he could step out at a lively clip right now.

Perhaps many of you are not aware that Penn State has fostered baseball through the years, and in doing so she keeps pace with Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Penn, Fordham, Holy Cross, Boston College and other big eastern schools. Besides McIlveen, the Nittany school has sent out Birdie Cree, Cliff Heathcote, Hinkey Haines, Glenn Killinger, Phil Page and others to star on the diamond in a professional way.

Boston, called the Hub of Culture, seems to think that collegiate baseball is a part of that culture. I remember on one occasion when the Pirates and Braves played to a crowd of several thousand at Braves Field while Holy Cross and Boston College fought it out before 18,000 fans at Fenway Park in one of their games of their perennial series. In the stands were scouts for many major league clubs who were dickering for the services of various stars after their graduation.

It fell to the fortune of Eddie Phillips, Pirate catcher of last season to take part in the collegiate contest which established an attendance record that may stand for many years. When Phillips was in Boston College he caught for his team against Holy Cross, traditional rival, before 42,000 paid admissions in a contest staged at Braves Field.

Getting back to Lefty McIlveen again, the former State sports celebrity is like every other mortal who has ever followed baseball in a semi-serious manner. Lefty gets diamond fever very easily, especially at this time of year.

"Unusual baseball skill is something that grips a fellow when he sees it," said McIlveen. "It was my great pleasure to see two of the greatest outfielders of the game get their start. When Connie Mack brought his club to the old Highlanders' Park in New York in 1908 I saw a rangy kid of graceful lines catching all manner of drives as though he were having a picnic. That boy was Joe Jackson. What a great hitter and fielder!

"I also enjoyed a rare treat the first time I saw Tris Speaker walk onto the field. He was just a kid, but even then he was a marvelous outfielder. A ball a marvelous outfielder." [illegible] and Indrisano scaled 148½.

FREY TO PLAY FOR THOMAS

By TOM BIRKS

Manager Ray Kennedy, of the J. L. Thomas club, of the City League has announced that George Frey, former Dormont and McKeesport infield star, will play with his club this season, and that the club will hold a special meeting at the club house tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Frey attended the Thursday meeting of the City League and tried hard to get a berth for the McKeesport club, playing at Cycler Park.

Many City League clubs will hold practice sessions this afternoon, weather permitting. Manager Art Rooney wants all candidates for berths on the North Siders' team to report at the Salt Works today at 2:30 o'clock. Eddie Baker, Mike Skadalny and Mike Sebastian are requested to be on hand.

Manager Hank Daly will have the Homewood applicants on review, so Capt. George Spiers can get a line on the prospects. Young Strudnicki, former Schenley High School star pitcher, will be fighting for a berth with the East Enders.

Brouillard Beats Johnny Indrisano

BOSTON, April 9.—(AP.)—Lou Brouillard, of Worcester, former welterweight champion, last night edged Johnny Indrisano, Boston boxing master, out of the decision in the Boston Garden's 10-round feature bout. Brouillard owed his victory to a heavy right to the jaw that dropped Indrisano for a nine count late in the second round. Brouillard weighed 148

MEMPHIS, April 9.—The record made by the Pittsburgh Pirates on their exhibition tour, which will end tomorrow, may be a bit disappointing to loyal followers, but to Manager Gibson it has been a highly successful tour. The Buccos have a .500 pecentage for games won and lost during the trip.

Today the Pirates open a two-game series with the Memphis Chicks, of the Southern Association. Tomorrow they'll clash again and on Monday, the Pirates will be in St. Louis, for a final workout prior to opening the National League chase with the World Champions Tuesday.

WIN IN TENTH

Yesterday, the Buccos rallied in the tenth inning to score six runs and defeat the Dallas Steers, of the Texas League, at Dallas, 14-to-8. It was the second extra-inning fray in a row for the Bucs, the Pittsburghers having been beaten Thursday by Fort Worth in 10 frames.

The Pirates came from behind with four runs in the seventh inning to tie yesterday's fray and then, with Crandall hurling, held the Steers at bay and punched over their half dozen runs in the extra inning to win out. Dugas, Suhr, Piet and Vaughan led the 17-hit attack of the Pirates, Vaughan hit a home run, which was matched by Bonura, of the Steers. Niggeling and Crandall occupied the mound for the Buccos.

Manager Gibson has not been particularly anxious to roll up victories in the exhibition campaign, has been content to let the victories go by the boards, and has placed far more importance on getting his men into the proper trim for the National League grind.

TEAM IN TRIM

On more than one occasion during the present tour, Gibby had the opportunity to add to the victory column simply by leaving his regular outfit intact to hold an early lead, but this he refused to do and removed hurlers who were pitching shutout ball to allow others to get some work. In doing this however, he has realized just what he set out to accomplish and will send a highly developed outfit into the National League campaign.

The Pirates have not been free from injuries and illness this season, two of the club members being stricken during the spring trip, Charley Wood and Remy Kremer, both hurlers, are the players who were smitten by the jinx. Kremer at the present time seems to have recovered from his ailment and is ready to step in and take his regular turn on the mound. Gibson has been allowing him plenty of time to get back in the best possible shape.

Wood will be out for the greater part of six more weeks. He had his appendix removed while the team was stationed at Los Angeles.

West Penn Quintets Resume Duel Tonight

The Schneiders and North Siders, of the West Penn League, resume their series for the championship of the circuit at Social Hall, North Side, tonight. Both teams have won a game.

The fourth contest will be staged Monday with the series to go the best three out of five games.

CARDS, MACKS PICKED TO REPEAT

BUCCOS PLACED FIFTH; GIANTS, YANKS TRAIL

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—For the third successive year, the champion St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Athletics have the backing of the majority of experts to win the major league baseball pennant races.

The most striking feature of the sixth annual Associated Press pennant poll, compiled today, is the apparent conviction it will be mainly a two-club contest in each circuit. The two Manhattan entries, the Giants and Yankees are named as the only real challengers to the present rulers of baseball's big league roosts.

In the balloting by sports editors and writers of the major league baseball cities, the World Champion Cardinals prove much stronger favorites than the athletics to repeat. This coincides with the opinions of professional betting commissioners, who rate the Red Birds an even money choice and the Athletics at 6 to 5.

CARDINALS FAVORED

Of the 67 predictions on the 1932 order of finish received in the Associated Press poll, 48 favor the Cardinals to make it three in a row while 38 pick the Athletics to set a new American League record of four consecutive victories. Last year, 35 experts picked St. Louis and 41 named Philadelphia out of 64 ballots.

All but one of the remaining American League ballots goes to the Yankees, who, as the choice of 28 critics, muster the strongest backing they have had since they were toppled off the baseball throne in 1926. Cleveland gets one pennant vote for the coming campaign.

The Giants have the support of 15 observers who think they will surge back to the National League peak for the first time since 1924. The Chicago Cubs, second choice last season, get only three pennant votes this year. The remaining National League ballots goes with a load of optimism to the Phillies—one of the most improved outfits in the league, at that.

PIRATES PICKED FIFTH

The Pittsburgh Pirates are picked to finish in fifth place, behind Brooklyn's Robins. Boston is placed in the National League cellar with the Chicago White Sox occupying the same position in the American loop.

The following table shows the outcome of the vote for each position in the sixth annual Associated Press major league pennant poll:

DETROIT, April 9.—Some 46 Pittsburgh pinsters will be on the tournament drives of the annual American Bowling Congress today determined to make up in the matinee events for the shortcomings of eight of the nine teams that pecked away at the wood last night.

But one outfit was able to accomplish anything of moment, this being the P. A. A. No. 1 quintet which put over 2835 to land well inside the money.

Railroaders of the P. and L. E. R. R. No. 1 ranked next with 2685 and stood outside the collection row only because of an 800 start.

The No. 2 team was in the same boat as it knocked over but 802 sticks at the start and then came through with a couple good games to total 2660. Market Square had a 2592, P. A. A. No. 3, 2569; Wessa Recreation, 2582; P. A. A. No. 2, 2483, and P. A. A. No. 4, 2387.

WOMEN'S GOLF CARD SET

A schedule of 30 tournaments and team matches has been announced for fair golfers of the Pittsburgh district for the coming season. The official card as given out by Mrs. George L. Hays, president of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania, provides for the inauguration of tournament play May 11 with a Section I match at Stanton Heights and a Section II program at Mt. Clair. The team matches will be completed Friday, September 28.

Allegheny will stage the initial one-day medal play tourney May 18 and the West Penn championship tourney will be played over the Fox Chapel course August 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26. The complete schedule follows:

[illegible]

Proposed county tournaments for men and women to be staged on the courses at North and South Parks are unlikely this year, according to a statement made by John Jas. Burke, city manager of county parks. Burke said the tournaments undoubtedly would receive the full approval of the County Commissioners once the courses were in shape, but added that it was doubtful if they could be worked into trim this year.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

BALTIMORE, April 9.—After winding up the season 10 days ago, I see they're still struggling to determine pro hockey's world champs. If baseball operated that way, we'd fight from April to October just eliminating the Red Sox and Cincis. Then the remaining 14 clubs of both leagues would play a couple of series with each other until around Thanksgiving, when the three best clubs in each circuit would clash again and we'd be down to the real world series about St. Patrick's Day.

Nick Altrock

And, after it was all over, the Chicago White Sox might wind up as world champions, or maybe the Boston Braves.

Those hockey magnates sure could give the parking house barons pointers on squeezing the final nickel's profit out of the pigs' squeals.

GRID OFFICIALS SELECTED FOR PITT FRAYS

By JESS CARVER

Red Friesell, Dex Very, Bill Crowell, E. J. O'Brien, Bill Holloran, Lee Edmonds, Ed Thorp and Ed Taggart will referee Pitt's football games next fall, according to a batch of information given out today by W. (Before the Dons) Harrison, Pitt's director of athletics. The Panther director announced the entire list of officials for the Pitt contests of next fall and among those who will oversee the actions of the Gold and Blue on the fields none other than His Honor, Judge John P. Egan, who'll be Jack to the boys even though he some day perches on a Supreme Court bench.

Egan, who was out of the officiating game last fall, is back again this year and will serve in the capacity of umpire. He is not slated to do any refereeing. He'll be the umpire in the Pitt-Army game in New York.

Director Harrison also announced the golf schedule for this spring. The Panther linksmen are to meet Penn State at State College April 30, George Washington here May 7, Kiski here May 9, Notre Dame here May 14 and Kiski at Kiski May 21.

Following is the list of football officials appointed by Walter Okeson, Commissioners of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association for the Selection of Football Officials:

Ohio Northern at Pittsburgh, W. H. Kinney, Junction, referee; Dan B. Dougherty, W. & J., umpire; A. E. Sharpe, Lansdowne, H. C. Davis, Bucknell, field judge.

West Virginia at Morgantown, D. W. Veri, Penn State, referee; C. J. McCarthy, Lehigh, umpire; Dean Watkins, Syracuse, linesman; E. R. Goodwin, W. & J., field judge.

Penn State at Pittsburgh, E. C. Tagg, Rochester, referee; T. J. Thorpe, Columbia, umpire; G. A. Hogan, Dartmouth, linesman; C. L. Bolster, field judge.

TO NAME DIRECTOR

Out of Little Washington comes the info that next Wednesday night the Wash-Jeff board of trustees will gather to select a director of athletics to succeed the old graduate manager department.

Pete Henry, former all-America tackle star and now acting graduate manager and assistant football coach, and Dan B. Dougherty, of Wash-Jeff and Michigan, well-known district football, basketball and baseball official, are the two candidates out in front in the running for the job. Henry, who holds the position of line coach, is considered to have a very fine chance of landing the directorship, though his coaching position may work to his disadvantage.

HOLT DEFEATS BILLY ROSE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

Keeping his promise to drop his counter punching style and fight aggressively, Billy Holt, hard-hitting young Negro welterweight, of Homewood, last night outboxed and outfought clever Billy Rose, Cincinnati veteran, to win the unanimous decision in their 10-round windup battle in the Kaphan Arena. It was a pleasing bout, with Holt's rushing attack and hard hitting triumphing over Rose's ring generalship and stabbing left, with an occasional rally thrown in during which the visitor threw his right.

There were no knockdowns and neither boxer ever was in danger of being stopped. Holt was guilty of hitting low a few times as he rushed in and swung his left to the body of the fast-moving Cincinnatian. The local man was unmarked at the finish, while Rose's left eye was in mourning over most of the route and his left ear was cut and bleeding in the final round. Rose weighed 152½ pounds and Holt 148½.

HARRIS BEATS EVANS

Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O., found the veteran Dick Evans, of Youngstown, a cagy foe, and had to travel at a fast pace to win the six-round semi-final. Evans rode or stepped inside most of Harris' knockout-labeled wallops and himself was dangerous. Evans weighed 166 and Harris 158½.

Carl Montebano, of Braddock, 159½, was too big and too strong for Patsy Wallace, New York Negro, 150½, and fought his way to the decision in the second bout, while Anson Green, Homestead Negro, 157, knocked Russell Powers, of Youngstown, 154½, cold in the third round of the opener, but was deprived of credit for a full-fledged knockout victory through the failure of Referee Eddie Kennedy to count out his victim as required by the commission's rules.

Powers was down for nine and got up exhausted and was floored for keeps with a right. As he went down this time his seconds tossed in a towel, and the referee, upon seeing it, did not even begin to count, but signaled for the seconds to come in and drag away their fighter, who was out for many times the required 10 seconds after being lifted to the seat in his corner.

The result was announced as a knockout, but, under the commission's rules, is automatically reduced to a technical knockout by reason of the elimination of the count.

The crowd was only fair in size.

Between Rounds

[illegible]

There will be no shows at the Motor Temple or Mt. Ravenwood next week.

Frank Schaaf, Reading (Pa.) heavyweight, is certain to stay in the ring for a $1,500 guarantee with a privilege against a local opponent. A few months ago his price was $3,500 and his transportation from Boston. Times Are Changed.

Frank Spears was on the short end of each of his wrestling bouts at the Fair-den so far this season, but upset the dope to win both, gaining a decision over Ray Steele and throwing Everett Marshall and now he's coming back to meet Jim Londos, in the main event bout next Tuesday night. He'll hardly take this one, but it can't be denied that he has qualified for the chance.

M. P. Warner, Pine Orchard, Conn., 21-year-old Yale junior, who was not good enough last year to make the Eli team, came through in fine style yesterday to down J. M. Robbins, Merion, Pa., former Princeton linksman, 2 and 1.

In the other semi-final, J. Bryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., who has participated in many tournaments since he played for Yale in 1921, had his putter working like magic to defeat Halbert J. Blue, Aberdeen, N. C., another veteran, 3 and 2.

It will be his sixth half-mile run against competition. He won the event in the National Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. last year in 1:54.4. His best times for the race are 1:52.4 and 1:53, both made last year.

RULE MAKERS MEET TODAY

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—The basketball rules committee will decide today what, if any, changes in the code it will make to speed up the game.

The elimination of stalling is the main objective. Particular interest centers on the "center line" recommendation of the National Coaches' Association which met in Chicago recently.

This rule would require a team obtaining the ball in its own back court to work it across a line bisecting the center of the court within 10 seconds on pain of losing it on an out-of-bounds ruling.

Chief objection to this suggestion in a meeting of the rules revision sub-committee yesterday was that it placed the burden of forcing the play on the team with the ball. Some members of the sub-committee thought that was a task for the defending team.

Some Men Expect Girls to Be Slaves After Marriage

He never steps her out. He never brings her posies or pretties—

And he sez, sez he, that all the glad rags a married lady needs is one "kitchen dress."

Moreover, wimmen, according to him, have gotta know their place and not speak out of turn.

Yet "Perplexed" has promised to amble down the well-known aisle with him and let him slip the well-known shackle on her finger. But lately she's been having doubts.

"Do you think he'll make me happy?" she asks us.

Do we? Well—

"Dear Sally:

"I enjoy reading your column, and I think you usually know what you are talking about, so I am coming to you with my problem. I hope you can help me.

"I am engaged to marry a young man whom I have known for about five years, although I have been going with him for only about six months.

"He never takes me anywhere. If I suggest that we go for a ride in his car he will agree to that, but we are always back home in about a half-hour.

"He has never given me any sort of present except this last Christmas, when he gave me a one-pound box of candy. Honestly, I hid it, because I was ashamed to let anyone see it.

DOUBTFUL ABOUT FUTURE

"He never has much to say, but once he casually mentioned that a woman has to know her place and what she is for, and another time he intimated that after a woman is married she doesn't need any clothes except one kitchen dress.

"He is very much against women working after they are married, too.

"Will you please tell me whether you think he would make his wife happy? Or do you think I will be doing right if I break off this engagement?

"Please help me. I don't know just what to think.

"PERPLEXED."

Would he make a wife happy? What with, may I ask? Maybe he thinks he is a swell prize package that any woman should jump at like a trout jumps at a fly—and with as little care about getting hung up on a hook.

EXPECTS TOO MUCH

And no doubt he thinks that in you he has found the sweet li'l soul who will give up all her own ideas and sit admiring him or dash around waiting on his royal whims.

If that's the sort of thing you like, sister, go to it! But if it isn't, then you'd better get wise to yourself, pronto and plenty!

This big, generous bozo reminds me of a chap I knew once. He had been raised in a country where only gents were people, and he thought American girls were simply awful. Then he met one who fell for him, and he thought he heard wedding bells in the distance.

But he wasn't going to be caught napping. He told the young lady, before he said the fatal "I do," just what should be expected of a wife. And what happened? She did a little telling herself about what should be expected of a husband—and the wedding plans went into a total eclipse.

You might try that on your swain, Perplexed, if you want to see some fur fly. The riot would probably be worth it.

'THE PLAYER OUT-PLAYED'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

The Champion out-done by mere amateurs. Venus' son out-played at his own game—he, the cunningest, and most experienced player at the old game of Love. But two lovers, just sitting in the maddest and sweetest of games for the first EARNEST time in their lives, can be still going, with lexicons of beautiful and piquant words still left, half their love still untold, when Cupid himself has yawned his last yawn, and passed out! Two o'clock is too late for infants like him!

Children's Parties

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am giving a birthday party for my son 4 years old, and would like to know how to write the invitations for the little folks. MRS. F. G.

It would be amusing if you bought children's paper, which usually has a little colored picture on it, and wrote the invitations in your little boy's name. Perhaps something like this:

Dear Jack:

On Saturday, I'll be 4 years old. Come to my party, please, and play with me. There will be good eats. Come at 2 o'clock.

TOMMIE.

Otherwise, you should write or telephone the mothers of the children you wish to ask and tell them about your little boy's birthday and invite their children to your party, giving date and time with great care. It will also be wise to assure the mothers that what refreshments the children receive will be simple.

The Widow's Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A says that a widow retains her husband's name after his death . . . Mrs. James Brown. B says that a widow uses her own name after the death of her husband . . . Mrs. Jane Brown. Which is correct?

2. Is it proper to give a shower to a young woman who has had her previous marriage annulled? If not, what would be the proper way to arrange a gathering of a few intimate friends? C. W.

1. A is right. The widow uses exactly the same form of name, after her husband's death, that she used before his death.

2. It would seem to be that it would be in better form if the hostess-to-be arranged a tea to which she invited the close friends of the bride-to-be.

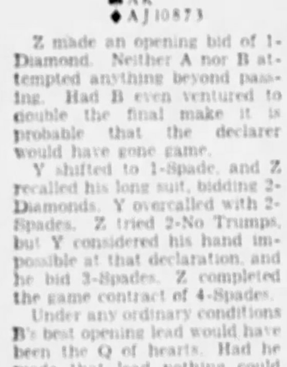
Contract Bridge -:-

OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Outguessing Your Adversary

Possibly there is greater satisfaction in defeating a game bid through clever play than there is in going game through ordinary methods. Sharp players continually attempt to outguess one another. The hand below offers an excellent example of reading what the declarer probably will do and what course stands the best chance of defeating a game contract.



Z made an opening bid of 1-Diamond. Neither A nor B attempted anything beyond passing. Had B even ventured to double the final make it is probable that the declarer would have gone game.

Y shifted to 1-Spade, and Z recalled his long suit, bidding 2-Diamonds. Y overcalled with 2-Spades. Z tried 2-No Trumps, but Y considered his hand impossible at that declaration, and he bid 3-Spades. Z completed the game contract of 4-Spades.

Under any ordinary conditions B's best opening lead would have been the Q of hearts. Had he made that lead nothing could have prevented the declarer from going game, as the J could have been picked up on a return lead through B's hand. Perhaps a false lead of the J, thereby denying possession of the Q, might have deceived Y. Thinking over the bidding, B decided that in all probability most of the missing hearts lay with the declaring side, or they never would have ventured bidding game with so much spade strength missing. B decided that his safest opening lead was the 10 of clubs.

Having won the first trick with the K of clubs, dummy's Ace of diamonds was led, to afford Y a discard of a losing club. Wanting to lead trumps from his own hand, Y led and ruffed a low diamond. He then led his 9 of spades, hoping to obtain a cover with the 10 or J. The odds were two to one that the five missing trumps were divided 3-2, and B knew this. B felt confident that the declarer never would dare finesse his 9, so B dropped his 3. As anticipated, Z's Q was played, only to find that B held the A-J-10, three certain trump tricks over Y's K.

Having won the second lead of trumps with his 10, B put dummy in the lead with its Ace of clubs. The declarer did not like to trump a diamond, so he led the Ace of hearts, followed by the 9 which trick B won on a finesse, and he ruffed Y with a third lead of clubs, leaving two losing trumps in his hand.

The last four tricks went as follows: Y led the K of hearts, followed by the 10. B ruffed the last lead with his J; he took out one of the declarer's trumps with a diamond lead; Y had to give the last trick to B, by leading his K, that B won with his Ace. One heart trick and three spade tricks defeated the game contract, by one trick. B had guessed better than Y had. That was all.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Help Your Child Get Rid of 'Examination Panic'

As the season approaches for promotion and examinations in the schools many cases of "examination panic" appear among the older pupils. This state of mind is referred to by the scientists as the "inferiority complex." Among its symptoms are a loss of morale, a feeling of fear and a despair of the power to make good in the coming tests.

Dr. Copeland

In certain cases this fear is well grounded. A student who has neglected his studies for months can hardly hope that a few weeks of "cramming" will enable him to pass a brilliant examination. But there are many diligent workers who are thoroughly familiar with their subjects, yet whose courage has departed. So profound is their despair that they have lost the initiative to review the subjects required for promotion or graduation.

This loss of courage may be due partly to physical causes. A thorough medical examination may reveal some functional or organic defect responsible for the mental condition.

The average adolescent is careless regarding personal hygiene. The rules of health mean little to him, and he often looks with disdain at the men in training for athletics. Nevertheless, loss of adequate sleep, haphazard meals, too much coffee, too many cigarets and sometimes indulgence in alcoholic beverages are sure to injure the health, and, beyond this, they destroy the mental poise.

Children who apply for working papers in the cities must pass a physical test. The teeth must be put in order and eye defects must be corrected by glasses before they are considered fit to enter the business world.

Would it not be reasonable to insist on a similar physical test a few weeks before examination time for the pupils who continue in school? This procedure would discover conditions demanding correction. By their correction the students would materially aid their chances for promotion.

The wise physician is capable of discovering functioning disorders which are responsible for an abnormal mental attitude. For example, constipation and its resulting auto-intoxication will produce a mental dullness that is destructive to good judgment and clear thinking. Loss of sleep will give brain fag.

Eye strain frequently results from night studying. To avoid this, the light should be so placed as to give proper illumination. Eye strain may be complicated by severe headaches, which are relieved when the patient rests the eyes for a few hours. Rest glasses may be needed, even though no actual eye defects demand correction.

A neglected head cold or obstinate nasal obstruction may account for mental dullness. We all recognize the stupidity of the child with adenoids, but we are apt to ignore similar conditions among the older young people in our schools and colleges.

Reassurance and encouragement by a physician who has gained the confidence of a student will do wonders in helping him to carry on. Many a timid soul will be able to make the grade if some one he believes in and respects assures him that he is fully able to work.

Let us give thought to these matters. By so doing we will relieve a lot of mental distress.

Household Hints

Delicate china should always be washed in warm water to which a little fuller's earth has been added instead of soap.

Clothes will not freeze on the line when hung out in cold weather if a little salt is added to the water in which they are rinsed.

When you wish to use only the yolk of an egg, remember to break it into a funnel. The white slips through, leaving the yolk behind in the funnel.

To clean tarnished silver, make a solution of boiling water and soap powder. Place the article to be cleaned in the water and scrub with a stiff brush. Dry with a soft cloth and polish with chamois leather.

Eggs are not always available for binding rissoles and cutlets. In an emergency use equal quantities of flour and dripping. Melt the latter, add the flour, and boil with a little stock or water for five minutes.

To clean brown kid gloves, place the gloves on a folded towel, then apply with a piece of flannel a little fresh milk in which a generous amount of best yellow soap has been dissolved. When quite clean pull the gloves out gently and place in the open air to dry.

Don't Laugh at 'Puppy Love'

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Since Bud was still enough of a child to blurt out his true feelings, it was his misfortune that he had a mother and father who howled with laughter when he told them that on his first formal call the night before, when he wanted so dreadfully to seem a man of the world before the young lady's father, he had forgotten his own name.

Yes, truly. He admitted it frankly—said he had rung the bell and the girl's father had answered it, asking in a kindly way who it was calling, and that then a lump had come up in his throat and he had stammered and hemmed and hawed and just couldn't think what to say.

Well, the picture of a gawky youth all dressed up and not being able to recall his own name does indeed, at first glance, inspire a smile—but not ridicule.

I know the fearful sensation myself. I have it every time I go through the customs. I'm scared to death, even though I can boast I've never smuggled so much as a hairpin. Yet that convulsive tightening of the throat, that moment of silly panic, is something I, for one, can't help. And I presume that is how the lad felt.

A first call on a girl can mean a lot of things to a lad, and they should mean kindly, frank, friendly things from all the adults involved. It is a sensitive, trying period the young people are going through, and we should spare them laughter over their first abortive attempts to become full-fledged adults.

If we laugh consistently enough at our adolescents they become shy, or they become furtive in their affairs, which is a bit worse.

Comradeship of both sexes should be accepted as a normal, healthy thing, without adding to the young person's array of new sensations, new hurts, new thrills and ideals the burden of self-consciousness concerning them.

Puppy-love sounds funny, but as we look back it sometimes isn't so funny. Sometimes it is tragic, and wistful, and bitter, a time when we feel that no one in the world quite understands us.

Let us make the first "puppy love" affair a casual thing, an easy thing for the young adults. Let us not hurt them, for they are but learning patterns of conduct for normal love life, and finally normal mating. And there is nothing that hurts like being laughed at.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If feet smart and burn, give them a holiday now and then from their leather houses. Buy straw sandals and wear early in the morning and for an hour or so before going to bed. Give the toes an opportunity to unhuddle. Alcohol rubs and massage with talcum make feet happy and grateful. They carry heavy loads and deserve kind attention, which they seldom get.

There is this to be said in favor of complexion powder of dark tone; it meets in kindly manner the dark tone of the neck. How often one sees the peaches-and-cream complexion and the olive neck which appear to be in the throes of a color divorce suit. The neck seldom gets all the cosmetic necking it deserves. It should be well creamed every night, along with the face. An occasional bleaching treatment perks it up. Holding the head erect keeps fiddle strings from forming.

Some of the blonde gals with china blue eyes and fair complexion still believe in the legend that blonde requires a flesh colored powder. All wrong. In every healthy complexion there is a shade of ivory. A new orchid powder sets off the white-haired darlings; and the woman with black hair, black eyes and fair skin is set up in fine shape when she lays upon her celestial face a powder that contains a trace of green.

Try moistened salt as a corrective for moisture in the arm pits. Salt is cleansing and it is astringent. If a woman suffers from excessive perspiration, the salt glow is an excellent hygienic measure. Moisten a bowlful of ordinary table salt. Rub the crystals thoroughly into the skin. Step under the shower, turn on tepid water, chill gradually, friction the flesh vigorously with a coarse towel that takes hold like the pangs of a guilty conscience.

LA FOLLETTES URGE RELIEF

BOSTON, April 9 (AP)—United States Senator Robert La Follette and his brother, Philip, Governor of Wisconsin, advocated a $5,500,000,000 relief program and public ownership of public utilities in speaking before the Republican Roosevelt Club in Symphony Hall.

The brothers last night made a plea for a state plan of economic life and a revivifying of the courage and fortitude of the founders of the republic in meeting the present economic crisis, which they termed the worst since the Civil War.

Senator La Follette stressed the need of federal aid to cities and towns to promote public works and help alleviate the present unemployment of more than 8,000,000 persons. He stressed the fact that the government spent $25,000,000,000 in a war which was 4,000 miles away and said the same government should be willing to spend $5,500,000,000 to save the lives of its own needy now.

Lola Is Guarded by Police After Revealing Note Threatening Death

CHAPTER III

"What Miss Carewe says is not an exaggeration," declared old Rowland, with smooth authority. "I consider that she is in urgent need of police advice and protection."

Out of the pause that followed, came Colt's voice, clear, masculine and precise:

"Why do you think you will be killed?"

"I have been warned of what will happen to me!"

"Personally?"

"The warning was clear enough . . . for me!"

Colt looked at her, for the first time showing the slightest interest.

"A practical joke?" he suggested.

She looked at him searchingly.

"Mr. Colt, would you consider it a practical joke if you had a dog that you had loved for years and someone killed him?"

Colt's cigaret burned, neglected, between his fingers.

"That was done to my dog a week ago," Lola rushed on. "Into the gaze of Thatcher Colt had leaped a gleam of resentment. The chief was not a dog-lover, but any wanton killing stirred his resentment.

"That sounds farfetched!" he protested. "Where was your dog killed, in your apartment?"

"On the terrace, outside my bedroom window."

"And at what hour?"

"Late at night, while we were all asleep. My maid, my mother and Christine Quires, a girl friend who is stopping with me."

"How was he killed?" asked Colt.

"I don't know. We just found him dead."

SECOND PET DIES

Was this all that had alarmed the beauty? Yet there was no mistaking the fear that possessed Lola Carewe.

"Has anything else happened to alarm you?" asked Colt politely.

Lola shivered.

"Yesterday, she disclosed, "my pet parrot, Pandy Boo, given to me by my late husband, also died."

"How?"

"I don't know."

"Wasn't it poisoned?"

"That's the queer part. I thought so. But I sent the poor thing to an animal hospital. They could find no trace of any poison at all."

Colt nodded thoughtfully.

"Still, isn't it probably only a coincidence?" he suggested.

"Not after what happened tonight."

"Just listen to this, Mr. Colt," urged Vincent Rowland, as he leaned forward. All eyes were now on Lola.

"Only an hour ago I found a letter in the mail box as I came downstairs with Mr. Rowland. You see, Mr. Colt, we had not intended coming to Mayfair tonight. We were bound for the Lion's Paw, the new club out near Rockville Center. But as soon as we read this note I felt I must get to you about it. We telephoned your office, then your home—your butler told me you would be here. Vincent, show Mr. Colt that letter."

THREATENED IN LETTER

The aged lawyer gravely produced a plain, white envelope, from which the Commissioner drew a single sheet of ruled note paper. The message was written in cheap, brownish ink, the awkward block letters apparently formed with painful care and read:

"We have already killed the only two creatures that you ever had any real love for. Now we come to you. You are going to die before 3 o'clock. No human being can save you."

There was no signature. Colt carefully folded the paper and passed it to me.

"If someone meant to take your life, why warn you about it?" he objected, frowning. "The act of sending such a warning should be a psychological clue to the writer's identity."

The waiter brought the dishes of their orders. Lola Carewe toyed with her fork, then lifted it, about to taste a curry of lamb and rice. Colt's suave, casual indifference stayed her.

"I would not eat that if I really felt—"

"Of course," she murmured. "What a silly fool I would be to touch anything now."

"Ah, my dear Colt, then you do take the threat seriously," claimed Vincent Rowland with deep satisfaction.

"Miss Carewe's life may be in danger," granted Colt, tamping out his cigaret. "At least I think she should be well guarded tonight. I shall be glad to put some of our picked men at her disposal."

A little cry came from Lola Carewe and a grunt of disappointment from Rowland. Dougherty was staring meaningfully at the commissioner.

"Miss Carewe had hoped for your personal handling of this case," essayed the elderly attorney. "And so in fact did I. It would be a great favor to me."

"I feel that only you can save my life, Mr. Colt," shuddered Lola, her white fingers quivering as they toyed with her ruby. "No one else. I am really terrified."

"Thatcher," cried Dougherty, "we can't pass this up. It's natural, you understand."

COLT OFFERS SERVICES

Colt nodded slowly.

"Very well," he decided. "I shall be glad to supervise your protection by the police department—if you think you need that. But only on my own terms."

"Anything," cried Lola.

"And what are your terms?" from Vincent Rowland.

"That you, Miss Carewe, place yourself and your husband entirely in my hands. We must go to your home at once, and you must answer all my questions."

"Willingly," Lola Carewe agreed, with a docile, child-like gaze.

"There must be no deviation of any kind from police orders!" emphasized Colt.

"You shall be the boss!" she promised, laughing with an effort at lightness.

Poor Lola! If she had only kept that promise!

Five minutes later I was talking to headquarters from a telephone booth under the staircase outside the crystal room. At the other end of the wire was Inspector Flynn. I was transmitting Colt's orders.

"The chief wants detectives and one woman operative sent at once to the apartment house at No. 700 East Fifty-eighth street. Tell them to meet us in the hallway on the twenty-second floor. Fix it with the apartment house manager. And the chief says to step on it."

"O. and also K," growled Inspector Flynn as he hung up.

WOMAN ESCORTED HOME

Emerging from the telephone booth I found Detective H. H. Harris of the Fifth Avenue squad waiting for us. Harris was assigned to Mayfair every Saturday night. He was a first-grade detective, promoted as are all the New York detectives from the uniformed ranks—a dark-haired man with a soulful expression whose popularity with the opposite sex gained the police department many valuable tips. Colt had directed Harris to assist me.

"Everything set," Harris told me. "The Commissioner's car is now in front of the Forty-sixth street entrance. Three motorcycle patrolmen are standing by. Would you mind telling me what all this is about?"

I pretended not to hear him as I reclaimed hat, stick and overcoat and led the way up the red-carpeted stairs. Through the glass of the revolving doors, I saw the chief's car, and the round moon-like face of the chauffeur, Neil McMahon, impassive as a Buddha above the steering wheel. The air was filled with whirling snowflakes, and the wind made a harsh sound. I was suddenly overpowered by a sense of unreality. This New Year's Eve adventure seemed remote, bizarre, incredible. The three patrolmen were huddled together like blue night-hawks in the storm. The shields on their breasts gleamed brightly. One of them coughed. These men, Colt's car, the storm, all were real, but Lola Carewe's death threat . . .

When our party left the Ritz Carlton Hotel, that night, Lola was under strict and adequate police guard. Quickly she entered the Commissioner's car and sat in the middle of the rear seat. Colt rode at her left and I at her right. Dougherty and Rowland occupied the folding seats in front of us, and Detective Harris sat beside the chauffeur in front. At a word from Colt, we started off at break-neck speed through the slithering ice of the winter streets, followed by three chugging motorcycles.

"The glass of these windows is bullet-proof," Dougherty explained. For no apparent reason, Vincent Rowland laughed sadly.

"Am I to take it that we are now impregnable from attack?" he queried.

The District Attorney did not reply. The car stopped before the marquee of an apartment house, a thin, tall tower on the brink of the East River. Except for the three uniformed motorcycle officers, the sidewalk seemed deserted. Shivering in the dismal cold, we hurried into the lobby. With an unnatural sense of apprehension, I looked around me. So definite and so deadly had been the threat against this woman's life and Thatcher Colt had taken it so seriously that I was prepared to see an assassin in every dark corner.

Synopsis

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Though her husband died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. She arrives at the Mayfair accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. Following a spirited discussion, Lola sends a note to Colt, urging him to join her, stating that a life is at stake and she must speak with him. Colt joins her party. Lola voices the fear that she will not leave the Mayfair alive.

Now Go On

"You must answer all my questions," said Colt.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Again Feels That She Has Been 'Slighted'

"Nothing doing!" Dicky's voice sounded the protest first and Harry Underwood and Lillian echoed it with equal vigor. Katherine was the only one who remained silent at my assertion that I was sure I could take care of Baby Faith and finish my play for Mr. Veritzen at the same time.

I ought to say what the others do," she said with a wistful look in my direction, "but I don't see how I can turn over the care of that baby to anybody else but Madge."

"That's a fine, juicy slam," Dicky said, looking down at her quizzically, "when there's a perfectly good father with his dues all paid up in the Baby Tenders' Union standing in the wings waiting for his cue. Seriously though, Katrina, Madge must not attempt anything else but the finale of that play for the next three days. Of course, if it were a question of the baby's life or health, Madge would have to try the double stunt or give up the play altogether. But it seems to me that something can be managed."

"There can," Lillian struck in. "Did it ever occur to you that Mother Graham brought three children to maturity with. I believe, not even a broken arm among them."

"That's right! Mother!" Dicky exclaimed. "I never thought of her. It's just the ticket!"

"Well!" Katherine conceded with a wry smile at me. "I suppose that is the best bet. Faith will be perfectly safe with her and she won't do anything to upset her digestion but, oh boy! what a spoiled young lady she will be when I get her back again."

PLAN APPROVED

"Are you sure Mother will be able to stand the confinement of taking care of the baby so steadily?" I asked. "She isn't so very strong, you know."

"It will be the best thing in the world for her," Lillian said confidently. "She'll eat it up. Like so many old people, she thinks she's rusting just for the lack of something to do."

"That seems settled then," Harry Underwood said. "Now for a harder question. You never can stand the gaff of this job alone, Katrina, yet the Chief doesn't want any strangers in on it. How about it? Does your patient have to have strictly professional care every minute, or will it be possible for a couple of huskies," he pointed to himself and Dicky with a grandiloquent gesture, "to pinch hit for you?"

"It will not only be possible but entirely practical," Katherine said. "If, as we are afraid, the case is an extremely short one I shall be able to do almost everything myself, but if he should linger, or recover, I should have to have regular periods for rest. If you and Dicky could alternate for night duty I could take care of him from daylight till dark."

MADGE FEELS HURT

"Sort of a 16-hour shift with sandwiches and coffee at the well-known elbow," Dicky said, grinning at her. "Your spirit is willing, Katrina, or else you're a sort of a doubting Thomasina as to the quality of nursing which Harry and I could provide, but I think you'll find your flesh getting weak and trembly after a few days of that regime. Nay, nay, Little One. Harry and I will alternate for night duty, all right, but it will begin before dark in this daylight saving regime, and last some time after daylight. And the one who alternates will always be on call during the day in any emergency."

"As I shall be at night," Katherine said promptly. "And you are awfully good to insist upon taking so much of the burden. When I think of some of the hours I put in when I was across, this arrangement is child's play."

"But you're not in the army now," Harry Underwood hummed the paraphrase, and Katherine smiled at him as she rose from her chair.

"I must get back to my patient," she said. "Dr. Gibson assured me that he did not need me for a few minutes, or I would not have dared come over. Good-day, everybody. Good luck with the play, Madge!"

There was nothing but sincerity in her voice, but I felt suddenly as if the words were a mockery unintentional but keen, nevertheless. Everybody else in the household concerned with the great issues of life and death, and I, alone, outside it all, protected from it, was being wished "success with my play!"

Several thousand boys and girls, members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club attended the regular weekly meetings held today in the 17 Warner theaters.

At each of the chapters the children were specially entertained with talent recruited from among the club members. Some of the youngsters sang while others offered various dance routines. At some of the chapters before the meetings started the children received more than an hour of dancing instructions, while at the Enright, Schenley and Cameraphone theaters the youngsters were entertained by the Komic Club bands.

PRESENTED CARDS

Each member who attended the meeting today received a card with six spaces outlined on it. This card will be stamped with the Junior Komic Club stamp every time the child attends the regular meeting. Four stamps on this card before May 14 will entitle the youngster to a free ticket good for one admission to the big Sunday show to be given by the Sun-Telegraph and Warner theaters at the Stanley Theater, May 15.

Remember this special Sunday show will be for members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club only, and if you are not a member you still have time to join and receive the attendance card. You only have to attend four meetings between now and May 14. Go to the manager of any of the Warner Theaters where the Junior Komic Club meets regularly every Saturday morning, give your name and address, name of your parents, school you attend, date of your birth, to the manager, and he will present you with a membership card and button, together with the attendance card necessary for the Sunday show.

In tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph you will find another of the "scissor circus" cut-outs. The second in this series of animal cut-outs will be a trained lion. Cut it out and save it, along with the elephant that you received last Sunday, and it won't be long before you have a complete "circus zoo."

Remember, too, that "Uncle Bob and Betty," those two loveable characters, will read you the big Sunday Sun-Telegraph comic section tomorrow at 12:30 noon over radio station WCAE. Be sure to listen to them, as they are honorary members of your club.

Also in tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph comic section you will find more of the "Toots and Casper" doll cut-outs and more clothes for the entire family. There's a full dress suit for "Papa." A pretty new green dress for "Toots" and a new spring golf outfit for "Col. Hoofer."

A Perfect Combination

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you give the good-natured, accommodating person in your department a square deal when it is your turn to reciprocate?

No, and isn't it true that you impose on his generosity?

As he is willing to do favors do you not make requests increasingly?

You think this person is easy and therefore you do not hesitate to pile more and more of your work on him.

But when this individual asks you to do something for him you have an excuse, always?

Often he has put himself out to favor you, but will you disturb any of your plans, social or otherwise to help him out?

There is such a thing as being too ready to help out others.

Assuming burdens that don't belong to him rightfully there is danger of the accommodating one hurrying his own work in such a way that errors creep in.

When reprimanded he cannot give the real reason for poor work.

Good taste forbids bringing another in, but have you ever stepped forward and taken the blame that is really yours when the mistakes were made because of assistance given you?

Of course you haven't.

FRISBY HAS PLAN TO HELP CHINA

Above picture shows the huge crowd attracted to Mister Frisby's new sub-division in Manchuria, known as Frisby-by-the-Sea. The plan of selling lots to help the Chinese Republic is just one of the many thoughtful things the Congressman is doing to show America's friendship for humanity. "It will be my pleasure," says Frisby, "to turn over a percentage of the profits to the Chinese, whose attractive little roadside 'tea houses' have suffered from the trouble, but, nevertheless, have nickel-in-the-slot pianos. I have always been identified with popular music, and there is nothing I like better than to listen to a lively tune, and at the same time help revive good times. All I ask is that everybody buy a lot in Manchuria. If you can't come, mail a check and 'Uncle Horace' will pick out the lot for you; with a nice view and room for two-car garage and a distinctive home with breakfast nook, large bathroom and built-in features."

A Case of Nepotism

Discharge of Dr. Conover Reflects No Credit on Commissioner McGovern—Comment on Local News

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, chief lieutenant of Gov. Pinchot in Allegheny County, has undertaken to shoulder the responsibility for Pinchot's dismissal of Dr. John R. Conover as county medical director. But McGovern's explanation only presents the incident in a more unpleasant light, revealing it as a case of nepotism. McGovern had Dr. Conover discharged, and McGovern's nephew, Dr. Eugene A. Conti, was given his position.

Commissioner McGovern says he recommended the dismissal of Dr. Conover on May 13, 1931, on the ground he carried on the state payroll men who were at the same time on the county payroll. Dr. Conover does not admit this except in the case of one man, whom he says he required to resign from his county job. At any rate the fact that a year was allowed to elapse before Conover was dismissed detracts from the weight of McGovern's attempted justification.

City Council has done the right thing in refusing to accept as adequate the reduction in electric rates, amounting to about 10 cents a month for the average domestic consumer, offered by Frank R. Phillips, president of the Duquesne Light Company. It is to be hoped Mr. Phillips will come to realize that his company should permit the public to share more generously in its prosperity.

Word comes from Harrisburg that state officials are uncertain as to when and how the $10,000,000 for poor relief authorized by the Talbot act will be distributed. It looks as if they had been so confident that the Supreme Court would declare the act unconstitutional that the decision upholding its validity has caught them unprepared.

The threatened delay in the disbursement of the Talbot appropriation makes it all the more necessary that liberal contributions shall be made promptly to the Harris "family-help-family" fund. There has never been an appeal to the charitable people of Allegheny County that deserved a more generous response than that now being made. The need is urgent.

Director James M. Clark, of the Public Safety De- partment, deserves praise for his vigorous instructions to the police to enforce the law against the posting of political signs on public or private property other than billboards. Candidates for public office who violate the law do not commend themselves to the good will of the voters.

Candidates for the Legislature should not be per- mitted by the citizens to overlook the fact that the question of repealing the Blue Law of 1794 will be one of the big issues at the next regular session of that body. Every aspirant for a place either in the House or the Senate should be asked what his attitude will be.

Councilman William W. Roper, of Philadelphia, has introduced a resolution in the Council of that city, requesting the Department of Public Safety to "permit all forms of amusements, entertainments and sports to which an admission fee may be charged, on Sundays after 3 p. m., provided a 25 per cent tax is paid to the city." The plan, if legal, no doubt will give Philadelphia a handsome revenue.

It develops that it cost the county about $300 at the very least every time county officials went to New York to sign bonds. Now the money is to be saved through an arrangement for the use of a multiple signing machine in Pittsburgh. It is to be hoped that every little leak of this character will be plugged. As the Scotch say, "many a mickle makes a muckle."

The open hearth department of the Edgar Thom- son mills of the Carnegie Steel Company announces it will resume operations for 10 days to fill orders for rails and bars. The announcement is interesting as showing pessimists that there is still business to be had by companies that go after it aggressively enough. Industrial operations have not come to a standstill by any means.

The Pittsburgh district has reason to be interested in the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's application to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for a $55,000,000 loan. If the commission indorses the application and the corporation grants it, some large orders for equipment probably will be placed with local mills.

In connection with the appointment of H. B. Rust, president of the Koppers Company, as industrial county chairman of the American Legion's drive against unemployment, the announcement is made that large employers will be asked to establish the stagger system of employment in their plants. The system undoubtedly will make for a greater number of jobs.

The Chamber of Commerce, too, has started a laudable movement to stimulate business and relieve unemployment in its campaign to induce Pittsburghers to build homes and recondition old dwellings. This is an exceptionally good time for such work, not only because of the jobs it will furnish, but also because of the cheapness with which it can now be done.

The downtown subway project, advocated as a means of relieving traffic congestion and also as an unemployment measure which would cost the taxpayers nothing for at least three years, is standing up very well under the severely critical examination to which it is being subjected. Opponents of the plan cannot have failed to be impressed by the answers given by various well known engineers to their objections.

Chewinks and field sparrows, grackles and mourn- ing doves, bluebirds and meadowlarks testify with their matin songs that spring is here. The baseball season will open in a few days. A stirring incident in a ball game is depicted in an action photograph on the first page of the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph to be published tomorrow.

The American Weekly, distributed with the Sun- day Sun-Telegraph, will have as its frontispiece a charming full-page reproduction in full colors of Edmund Dulac's painting of Cinderella. One of the most interesting articles describes the marvels of nature, fantastic landscapes and fairy mountains and valleys as seen through the eyes of worms and insects.

There seem to be only two kinds of women: the kind who believes everything a man says, even when she knows he's lying, and the kind who believes nothing he says, even when she suspects that he's telling the truth.

No man appears to strain his eyes, these days, looking for a quiet, domestic girl with a lot of mental charms and homely virtues. And, even when he tries to, some little blonde with a whoopee soul and a chiffon intellect comes along and interrupts him.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 9.—Sitting here imitating a human sponge I wonder what gave me the quaint notion I could hail a taxi in the rain. I've been trying it, man and boy, for years with no luck. And here I am sopping and a half hour to reach the printer with this.

If a breeze would only spring up and dry me out. But take the wind situation as of even date. There's not enough stirring to dust off a gnat. Get wet and what happens? The wind dies down every time. I'd like to pop in where those women are gabbing and shake myself like the Sealyham on the parlor rug.

But if I did I'd miss the printer. There's enough water in my right shoe to fill the gold-fish bowl. Run me through a wringer and you could launch a rowboat. As for launching me all they have to do is crash a bottle over my head. And please give it all you have!

I'd been all right had I accepted Frazier Hunt's invitation to ride home after the theater in his car. But no indeedy I must put on the jug, wave him away with "No thanks, I'll just grab a taxi." Two seconds later, blooey, blooey, the heavens let loose. I mean loose as ashes, too.

Old Jupiter Pluvius! Apres moi le deluge! Cats and dogs! A couple of nightingales and perhaps a cheetah. O, didn't it pour! Every now and then I saw a taxi coming, rushed out to the curb and lifted my hand. But no dice. They would merely zip by.

You'd think I was all broken out with bubonic plague. Some would even veer away from me. Funny how many smart alecs collect in a shower. Just to be sociable I said to another fellow waiting: "Quite a rain!" He wise cracked: "Either that or it's a swell dew."

A no-good across the street hallooed: "Want a cab, buddy?" I sneered: "No, I'm just waiting to take a dancing lesson." He fielded that one and snapped back: "Wise guy, eh? All right swim home, Johnstown Jake." Charming fellow! One meets so many clever people in the rain.

* * *

Standing at the curb is getting me nowhere. So when the next taxi came sluicing down the street I rushed out and yoo-hooed. Grr-rr! And pss-st! Also squish. And a spray of dirty water from head to heel. Remind me to bust somebody in the eye when I dry out.

* * *

A private nickel-hooded limousine. It might take pity. So I did my imitation of a scare-crow in the rain for them. Including a few extra flaps to remember me by. Some one yelled out the window: "He does it with mirrors." And that's practically all to that.

* * *

My next fan drove by with a truck. Any port in the storm. So up went the tired old arm. "Hey, Jack, how about a lift?" He didn't even slow down but falsettoed: "Sure, Clarence, Upsy-daisy!" You'd think I rode horseback sidesaddle. And did that gang under the marquee snigger!

* * *

So there I stood hopelessly. Break, break, O sea! on thy chill gray bluffs. Life flows, monotonously on like the drip, drip, drip of soft rain. Oh, savage beauty, suffer me to pass! We might as well have a half-hour with the poets. There's nothing else to do. Wonder how old Niagara is making out this spring with all the competition hither and thither. I hope the Ohio is not on a rampage. I'll never forget its 1916 rise. There was a honey. Bill Geppert and I rode all the way to Sample's Landing on an outhouse. Just bob, bob, bobbin' along. Playing "Over the Waves" on our mandolins. Wonder what became of my mandolin—the one with the mother of pearl frets?

* * *

Here comes one of those block-long coast-to-cat busses. Radioing an orchestra tune. It will probably broadcast a long, fat chord in G as it passes, you know, the Bronx cheer. I'll wave anyway. As usual, nothing doing. He's going to the depot. From Los Angeles to New York but they couldn't take me a few itty bitty blocks. No sir. Summer will wane into autumn and they'll find me in front of this theater flapping my arms. Either that or I'll be hooked out of driftwood. And driftwood has always been one of my minor enthusiasms. Headline: "Floater Too Bloated for Recognition."

* * *

"Well, I can still walk and that's what I'm going to do. Home at last. But I dob feel so well. By bose ib all spopped up. But I'be bibished my column. By bublic always gomes first. Achoo!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Here's a true story. It came from that tragically matter-of-fact place, a police station, and it throws more light on our present day than a dozen wordy histories.

Here in this little story of Emma and Dan—is the picture of a changing nation; old ways giving way to new ways; people caught in the sifting tide, not knowing which way to turn.

Maybe you're caught in that same tide. Yes? Then listen!

They're just an ordinary young couple, but they love each other with that love which is never ordinary.

Four years ago they met. For months they dreamed and saved, then married. The joy and pride of that first little home—the first set of furniture! On installments, of course, but soon to be really theirs!

One year, two years, everything went well. The debts were shrinking. Their hopes were mounting. If things stayed good—

But things didn't stay good. As you probably know, Dan lost his job; found another; lost that; began picking up a day here, a week there.

Just an adventure at first. They laughed over it; kissed and kidded each other into courage; were sure it would blow over, if they had patience.

But patience wouldn't pay the landlord, the grocer, the gas man or doctor.

So one day, quietly, without telling Dan, Emma went out and found a job for herself; not a good job, but enough to keep them from starving. Her eyes were starry that night when she told Dan, but Dan looked as if she had struck him.

Next day he went out like a mad man. He HAD to find work. He COULDN'T LIVE on Emma's money! Let a little kid like that support a great big fellow like him? He'd do anything. There must be a job somewhere.

But there wasn't—not that day, or the next, or the next.

That was a year ago. Not once in that year has Dan been able to find steady work. Now and then an odd chore. Emma has kept them going. It has been a year of hell for Dan, with the shame of it branding him worse than a red hot iron.

He wouldn't stand it! He couldn't!

Last night when Emma came home she found this note:

"My Darling—

"When you read this please try to understand that what I am doing I am doing for your sake. I have stood by for a year and saw you going out every day to work, and I am only proving a detriment to you.

"I realize that under these conditions it will only be a matter of time before what love you now possess for me will die; so I am leaving to try and see if I can't get something somewhere.

"If I do procure something, somewhere, I will write at once. Please do not worry, as I will be back soon with good news. Please wish me LUCK, as I will be thinking of you every minute I am away. May God be good to you.

"Lovingly, as ever and always,

"YOUR DAN."

That was all. Dan has gone, and Emma, frantic, can't understand. Why should he do a thing like this? Why can't he accept her money in a pinch? He expects her to accept his, doesn't he? And yet—women work nowadays as well as men. Then why shouldn't they go 50-50 when they're in trouble?

And how can he love her—really love her—when he'll cause her misery like this? Did he do it because of love for her, or just for his own hurt pride? Oh, it isn't fair!

Fifty years ago you wouldn't have heard those questions, and for a very good reason. Wives didn't work outside the home 50 years ago. Nowadays many wives do, and must, work—must carry the whole load at times.

But what's a man to do under those circumstances?

Should he cling to the old code of 1882, or adapt himself to the new code of 1932?

What's YOUR answer?

Others Lead; President Hoover Follows

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Others lead; the President follows.

He has sent a message to Congress, with this preliminary statement:

"I have in various messages to the Congress over the last three years referred to the necessity of organized effort to effect far-reaching reduction of governmental expenditure."

During these "three years," until a few months ago, Mr. Hoover was making his recommendations to a Congress of his own political associates whom he was unable to influence or lead. No Republican Congress within that time gave the fraction of a second to the consideration of the necessity of reducing the cost of government.

Then the Democratic Congress came into existence and immediately named a committee for the purpose of devising the economies required by the state of the Hoover deficit. It was after this that Mr. Hoover became more interested in reductions than he had been when he had a Congress of his own party to deal with.

Indeed, there was complacent silence in the White House until action was begun without the cooperation of the Executive.

A Common Sense and Fair Proposition

The shocking extravagance and duplications in the governmental departments is nothing new. Aldrich spoke of it more than a generation ago. Smith made it the object of vigorous attack in the campaign of 1928. Then Mr. Hoover discovered it; and made a pledge. Meanwhile nothing was done, and the administration was approaching its end with a campaign intervening. Since the House has settled down to work on the job the President neglected, he has become extraordinarily articulate on the subject. Now, the conventions not far off, he sends another message.

And Speaker Garner says all in reply that need be said:

"If the President will send up a message telling us what he has in mind, we'll pass the bills."

There is not a business man in America who will not pronounce this a common sense and fair proposition.

And until he does submit his plan, if he has any, the House committee will proceed with its work. The cost of government must be drastically cut.

Too Much Jockeying

Thus, with the taxpayers increasingly irritated by mounting costs and taxes, there is too much jockeying for the purposes of politics. The other day the President proposed that the Shipping Board be abolished and its duties turned over to a bureau in existence. This was headlined as a great constructive idea. But before the President made that suggestion the House committee had determined upon that course, and the White House knew it.

Others lead; the President follows.

Again the President announces that economies to the extent of $269,000,000 have been affected by the budget recommendations. The clear implication is that there actually has been a slash or reduction in proposed expenditures to that extent. When this claim was made once before, attention was called to the Pickwickian character of the reduction. Now Representative Byrns, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, again calls attention to the nature of this reduction:

"I repeat that over $340,000,000 of this represents non-recurring items, such as buildings and other projects which have been completed."

So that is that.

* * *

The Time to Make the Slash Is Now

The President now proposes a joint commission of members of the House, the Senate and the executive department to formulate plans for the desperately needed slashes in the cost of government. This would mean a long delay in getting action. And, in the meanwhile, taxes to maintain the extravagances will have to be levied and collected next year. The time to make the slash is now—that the public may get the benefit of it now when it is needed.

Thus Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, interprets the effect of the presidential proposal—for it is a proposal, without a plan:

"The more we cut appropriations the less we will have to raise taxes. We must act now.

We mustn't wait until the election has come and gone. The President offers us nothing concrete. The result would be to take the pressure off the drive for reductions."

* * *

Just One Way to Postpone Action

All of which gets us back to this: If the President has actually given serious consideration to his campaign promise of 1928 to reorganize the government and reduce the cost of operation, and has a plan, let him put the plan concretely before Congress in a message, with the recommendation, which he has the right to make, that it be adopted.

Speaker Garner says the Congress will act immediately.

It is no answer to reply that the President cannot afford certain changes without congressional action, since congressional action is promised at once.

But if the President has no plan, it means that the promise of reorganization in 1928 was Pickwickian and that during the last three years no serious consideration has been given to the subject.

"Government by Commission." How familiar we have become with the phrase in the last three years! Whenever a pressing problem has presented itself, or the pressure of public opinion calls for courageous action—we have had a "Commission." And these "Commissions" have meant interminable delay, and non-action in the end. Now that Congress has almost perfected a plan for action, in the matter of economies in the interest of taxpayers, there is just one way to postpone action—by appointing a Joint Commission.

Dr. Butler's Attitude

Apropos of the coming Republican National Convention, Nicholas Murray Butler, who will be a delegate, and perhaps the most enlightened and civilized in the assembly, announces in an address that he does not go to Chicago committed to Mr. Hoover's candidacy. As far as the result of the convention is concerned there can be nothing alarming to the President in this. There will be 35 federal officeholders in the delegation from New York; and the President holds the delegations from the South, where he will not get an electoral vote, in the hollow of his hand.

But the attitude of Dr. Butler is significant of the trend public opinion is apt to take in the election. Never in our history has any President been renominated by his party with greater reluctance or less hope. This fact throws an interesting light on one very uninspiring feature of our party system.

The press reports that Dr. Butler, the intellectual leader of his party, had his party's candidate in mind, when he said:

"The candidate who has both the intelligence and the courage to formulate and publicly to state his views as to matters concerning which there is a sharp difference of opinion will command a respect and a confidence which will always be denied to the trimmer, the pussy-footer and the wait-and-see man."

Yes, even in normal times; but never so true as now, in the midst of the gravest crisis which calls for a leadership of courage, frankness, initiative and something of the audacity of genius.
